Quite an Earthquake Backward Modern Youth Where Is John L.? Prince and Wall St. Cured

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THE Eastern earthquake, reaching from Long Island to Halifax, was not quite "a trifling incident." Transatlantic cables lying on the bottom of the ocean were snapped in two, three out of four French lines made useless. Western Union and Postal Cables also suffering crippled service.

Robert Maynard Hutchins, only 30, is head of the Chicago University. At 26 he was dean of the Yale Law School.

In old days, oftener than in our day, great things were done by the very young, Alexander, Napoleon, etc.

Young Captain Nelson, later Admiral and Lord Nelson, when only 25, rebuked by an older officer for youthful presumption, replied: "Sir, I have the honor to be the same age as the prime minister of England."

The young president of Chicago University might quote that to anybody criticising his youth. He is six years older than Pitt was when he first became prime minister.

An Italian giant, Primo Carnera, height 6 feet 10, weight 250, having beaten the American, Stribling, in London, will come here and may fight another Italian giant, Vittorio Campolo.

In the featherweight prize fight division, Kid Chocolate, colored gentleman from Cuba, delighted New York's refined civilization by fighting Jose Martinez from Spain. Both speak Spanish.

Where are the American exponents of "the manly sport?" Where is John L.? Where Jack Dempsey, McGovern, the Terrible Battling Nelson, much puzzled when Jack London described him as an "abysmal brute." Nelson resented the word "abysmal."

England is gratified to hear that the King's second son, the Duke of York, thanks to an Australian specialist, is cured of stuttering, due to a physical difficulty.

The young prince no longer refers to his father as the "K-K-K-ing."

This interests Britishers more than news from Wall Street, which was good yesterday, by the way, prices higher, business slow and normal.

For some time it will be a case of indigestion.

When an alert prince of high finance capitalizes a few pack ages of food for three times as many shares, of stock as the total issue of United States Steel, casually offering an issue of $800,000,000, considerable digesting is necessary.

The way to make business better is to create more business.

Secretary Mellon knows, and asks Congress to increase appropriations for public buildings from $175,000,000 to $425,000,000 to be spent in 10 years.

The plans are made, the outlings are needed. Why not proceed now?

The country didn't hesitate a minute when other countries wanted ten thousand million dollars to continue fighting each other. If it could afford that, it can afford something for this country.

Wise men of Princeton learn that our Milky Way is a sort of united states of the heavens, divided into great "star clouds." Our sun, surrounded by thousands of other suns, lives in one cloud "only" a few thousand light years in diameter. A light year is the distance that light travels in 365 days, going at the rate of 186,000 miles a second.

Our Milky Way is made of many "star clouds" as our country is made of many states. A group of star clouds makes one universe. Endless other universes are visible beyond our "galactic system."

One of our neighbors, another universe, is the Coma Virgo galaxy, about 10,000,000 light years away. Add that up.

China and Russia that Wall Street would call "backward nations" are forward as regards war. Russia to cripple China's railroad, which both claim in dispute, bombards the railroad from the air at both ends, so that trains may not start or arrive. China fights back with their airplanes.

When a six years' program of building to cost close to seven billions was announced, American "experts" said it would take Russia 15 years.

Russia will complete the program in three and one-half years. Assisted by American engineers and American capital Russia has outstripped the United States' record in rapid building.

GIRL VICTIM OF ATTACK IS DYING

Beverly Student Is Hurled From Auto by Her Youthful "Kidnapers"

Rose Clintonl, 16-year-old Beverly high school girl, found unconscious in Cabot st., North Beverly, last night, recovered consciousness for a short time today and told police she had been kidnaped and attacked by two men in an automobile.

She was given the last rites of the Catholic Church and lapsed again into a coma.

Robert Nichols, of Beverly Farms, found the girl lying in the middle of Cabot st., near the North Shore Day School, and it was at first believed she was the victim of a hit-and-run motorist.

Police and her mother kept a vigil by her bed in the hospital during the night and this morning she regained consciousness long enough to tell them what happened.

She said she attended a festival at St. Mary's Church, Salem, leaving there about 8:30 p. m. and taking a street car. She alighted at Cabot and Rantoul sts., prepared to walk to her home a half a mile distance, when two men stepped from behind a building and grasped her.

She was thrown into an automobile and it sped away. After being attacked she managed to open the door of the speeding car and fling herself out, she said.

Report Lord Byng Much Improved

London, Nov. 20 (AP)—Lord Byng passed a much better night, and reports from the sick room today said his progress was satisfactory.

The chief of London police and former governor-general of Canada is suffering from congestion of the lungs and there has been fear he might develop pneumonia.

Girl Held in Bank Theft

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20 (AP)—Lena McCausian, 24 years old, was being held for Boston police today on a warrant charging grand larceny, preferred by the National Shawmut Bank of Boston. She refused to waive extradition and the Boston authorities said proceedings were being started to have her extradited.

When arrested last night, she collapsed and after receiving treatment at the General Hospital was removed to the Toronto jail hospital ward. She had been under bail here, awaiting trial on a charge of theft.

The girl under arrest in Toronto is wanted in Boston for larceny of $76.98 by means of a worthless check on the National Shawmut Bank of Boston, according to the Boston police. The check was cashed in Boston and was originally endorsed by another woman, who is known to the police.

Arrangements were made today by police officials to obtain extradition papers to bring the girl under arrest in Toronto back to Boston to stand trial here. Inspector Francis Haggerty will take the papers to Toronto and bring the girl back. She is known to the Boston police as Elma McCauslin, alias Lena Crockford, and formerly lived in Somerville.

LOSSES DRIVE STOCK DEALER TO END LIFE

Wollaston Man Is Found Dead in Garage at Harwich Summer Home

Harwich, Nov. 20 (AP)—Worry over heavy losses in the recent stock market decline is believed to have caused Alfred W. Petterson, 34, stock salesman, 231 North Central ave., Wollaston, to commit suicide at his summer home at Harwich Camp Ground, near Harwichport.

The body was found in his auto in the garage by his friend Charles Connors, Wollaston, who also had a summer place near the Petterson cottage.

The doors of the garage had been sealed with wet sand and it was evident that Petterson had seated himself in his car and started the motor running, inhaling the gas fumes. The gas tank was empty and the battery run down when the body was found.

Medical Examiner H. D. Hardy, Harwich, declared death due to suicide by carbon monixide gas. He expressed belief that the suicide had taken place on Armistice Day. In the man's lap was a Boston paper of November 11.

Death of Three Due to Quarrel Over Child

The question as to who should have custody of their nine-year-old daughter was settled by Dr. Augustin G. Anastasides, Harvard dental school graduate, class of 1913, when he shot and killed his wife and daughter and committed suicide in their New York apartment.

This was the opinion voiced by New York police officials investigating circumstances leading to the triple tragedy.

Mrs. Anastasisdes was formerly Sappho Kouroyes of Myrtle st., West End, often called "the West End's most beautiful girl."

DIED HOLDING DOLL

The wife's body was found outstretched in the living room. In her playroom, surrounded by her toys, was found little Thalia Anastasides. Her hand clutched a doll.

The dentist was found in the bathroom. There were two bullet holes in his head.

Nearby a note, addressed to the judge who recently awarded him temporary custody of Thalia, after she had been taken from the mother. It asked that the little family be buried in one grave, side by side.

Parents of the girl, however, said they wanted the wife and daughter buried apart from Anastasides.

The couple were married 10 years ago, while he was still studying at Harvard Dental School. The

TUNNEY WINS POINT IN SUIT

Bridgeport, Ct., Nov. 20 (AP)—Counsel for Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty of New York city and Fort Worth, Texas, in her suit against Gene Tunney, failed before Superior Court Judge Carl Foster, to have expunged twenty paragraphs in the complaint filed by Tunney in a counter-suit.

The motion of Frank L. Wilder, plaintiff's counsel, was made under a ruling which, providing the method of expunging from a record, reads: "Unnecessary repetition, prolixity, scandal, impertinence, obscurity or uncertainty in any pleading or the incorporation of irrevelant, immaterial or evidential matter, shall be a ground for a motion to expunge or otherwise correct that pleading."

Judge Foster held that it is a rule of the court that a motion to expunge is an elusive remedy and will be granted when a defect is plain.

Counsel for Tunney in the counter-suit had asked the court to issue an injunction restraining Mrs. Fogarty from pressing her suit. Judge Foster, as to the counter-suit, said: "The paragraphs of the cross-complaint are so drafted that each contains an allegation of some fact that may be material to the cause of action."

60 FLEE FIRE IN Y. M. C. U. BUILDING

Parked Cars in Tamworth Street Hamper Firemen; Touraine Menaced

Fire swept the Boston Young Men's Christian Union building at 48 Boylston st. today, driving some 60 members to the street and endangering for a time the Hotel Touraine and adjacent structures.

Two alarms were sounded, summoning a large amount of apparatus into the congested down town area. Fire lines were established as a crowd of thousands quickly gathered and all traffic at the Boylston-Tremont st. corner was at a standstill.

Firemen were greatly handicapped by parked automobiles in Tamworth st., the narrow thorough fare separating the five-story brick and stone Y. M. C. U. building from the Hotel Touraine.

It was impossible to get an aerial ladder into place in Tamworth st. and many cars were rolled out of the area before the fire fighters could reach a high pressure hydrant.

The flames are believed to have originated in the woodworking shop in the basement. Several classes of young men were in session at the time.

The fire mushroomed rapidly, ate up through the walls to the third floor and belched out the windows.

'Ambulance Plane' in 800-Mile Dash

San Juan, Porto Rico, Nov. 20 (AP)—A Pan-American plane was called into emergency ambulance service today between islands of the West Indies, when a request was received to send a plane to Trinidad to take two doctors to Antigua.

Save that haste was requested details were unknown here, but a plane was immediately dispatched to Trinidad, 800 miles from San Juan. Pilot W. A. Brook planned to make one stop en route, Antigua is about 400 miles from Trinidad.

Boy Shot as "Deer" Dies of His Wound

Bangor, Me., Nov. 20 (AP)—Murray Smith, 17, Hermon high school senior, mistaken for a deer and shot in the hip yesterday, while hunting at West Sebeois, died today.

FOUR SISTERS MAY BRING HUNDREDS TO TOMB

Pennsylvania Women Plan Pilgrimage; 7 Orientals Bear Cripple to Grave

Four sisters from four Pennsylvania cities visited Fr. Power's shrine today preparatory to leading a pilgrimage of several hundred persons from the four cities in which they live. One of the married women was cured of a long-standing ailment several years ago at the shrine of St. Ann de Beaupre in Quebec, she said.

Seven Chinese from Dover, N. H., bearing a crippled boy of their race, today visited the grave of Rev. Patrick Power in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

While a throng of more than 5000 early morning supplicants looked on, the Chinese with reverent mein, helped the boy to kneel at the tomb where so many cures have been reported and joined him in silent prayer.

Concluding their supplications, they lifted the boy and carried him to the chapel, where they again knelt in prayer.

Pilgrims began arriving at the cemetery before dawn, joining those who had arrived during the night and made their supplications despite the cold.

BIG CROWD TODAY.

At 5 o'clock fully 1000 persons were on hand, and the numbers increased steadily, with every indication of a record-breaking throng before the day is out.

Extra large daytime attendance is expected from now on as a result of the announcement of new regulations to become effective next week.

These regulations, as revealed by cemetery officials, will put an end to the night pilgrimages, and will confine the period of supplication before the shrine of cures between the hours of 2 o'clock in the morning and 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

They will also allow four days a week on which only the afflicted may visit the shrine, with the other three days open to the general public.

It is also planned to have a permanent assignment of 20 policemen at the cemetery to regulate the outpouring of faithful.

Today the daily pilgrimage of thousands began at dawn, when scores of persons, many crippled and blind, began the parade of fervor through the cemetery aisles to the tiny grave of Fr. Power. The early pilgrims found many there who had spent the night in prayer for Divine aid.

SLEEP IN CHOIR

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Marts of Staten Island, N. Y., who brought their son James, six, to the Malden grave, slept in the choir loft of the All Souls' Chapel, at the cemetery.

Martz stated that the boy has been suffering from paralysis of the arms and upper body and that

HOOVER STARTS HUGE TASK OF REORGANIZING U. S. GOVERNMENT

MILLIONS TO BE SAVED BY NEW PLAN

Will First Ask Congress to Consolidate All the War Veteran Agencies

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—President Hoover is ready to translate into action ten years' about reorganizing the federal government.

As a first step he has approved a plan to consolidate all of the agencies dealing with war veterans and their dependents and will ask the sanction of Congress for it at the opening of the regular session two weeks hence.

Chief among these agencies are the Veterans' Bureau, now functioning as an independent establishment, the pension office administered by the Interior Department, the National Home for Disabled Volunteers, another separate establishment, and the hospitalization division of the public health service.

SAVE MILL

The consolidation is expected to bring about a saving of several millions of dollars in administration and hospitalization costs alone and to simplify the work of dealing with the veterans and their dependents.

There would be created a new agency under a director reporting directly to the President through his administrative assistant. It would handle more than three-quarters of a billion dollars annually, embracing the $500,000,000 spent by the Veterans' Bureau, some $250,000,000 by the pension office and around $20,000,000 by the other divisions.

Under the direction of the President, a comprehensive survey now is being made for consolidating within the Justice Department most of the agencies dealing with prohibition enforcement and a recommendation along that line also will be made to Congress in the President's message.

OTHER CONSOLIDATIONS.

This would bring about a transfer of the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the Justice Department and the concentration in that department of other enforcement work. The whole work after the transfer would be under the single direction of G. Aaron Youngquist, assistant attorney-general.

Consolidation of other agencies dealing with the same or kindred subjects will be taken up soon with a view to recommendations to Congress for the necessary legislation. The purpose is to avoid duplication in effort and work, to simplify and lower the cost of administration and to save time for those who have business with the government.

Walker to Confer on Billion-Dollar Program

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—At a meeting of the Merchants' Association today Mayor James J. Walker will outline the $1,000,000,000 building program that the city expects to have completed within the next four years.

The building program calls for a bridge connecting Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens; a mid-town vehicular tunnel, a vehicular tunnel under the narrows from Staten Island to Brooklyn, school construction and completion of the new municipal independent subway.

MOB LYNCHES TEXAS BANDIT

Eastland, Tex., Nov. 20—Furious over his attempted jail break, in which he dangerously wounded Deputy Sheriff Tom Jones, a mob of 200 men lynched Marshall Ratliff, "Santa Claus Bandit" of the Cisco Bank robbery in 1927.

Ratliff was hanged from a telephone pole cable after the jailer had been captured and his keys taken. The bandit's naked body was strung up by a new grass rope, as nearly 1000 persons looked on.

On the first attempt to hang Ratliff, the rope broke, and the mob waited for about 15 minutes while a new grass rope was obtained.

The words "string him up," echoed from a hundred men, and again the hangmen bent their weight to the stout rope. This time he was left dangling in the air until dead.

STOCKS STRONG IN FIRST HOUR

New York, Nov. 20—The stock market continued to rally in the first hour today, most active stocks showing initial gains of 1 to 6 points.

Western Union jumped 6 points and Westinghouse Electric 4½.

Such issues as U. S. Steel, Radio, American Can, Kennecott, Hudson Motors, Consolidated Gas, New Haven, Erie, National Cash Register, International Nickel, and Southern Railway showed earlier gains of 3 to 3½ points.

Trading was in larger volume than during the initial hour yesterday. There was more confidence expressed in the immediate future in Wall Street. Much of this confidence was based by a grant of further good trade reports and extra dividends declared by three more corporations. The omission of a theaters dividend was explained as due to special conditions.

A gain in structural steel orders and increased contion spanning activity were among the favorable trade announcements of the morning.

Progress of the industrial conference at the White House and the report of railroad heads furnished inspiration for the bulls.

While gains were generally moderate, losses were few and far between. Eastman Kodak was up 5. Air Reduction and American Tobacco gained over 5.

Mrs. Dowie Claims Power of Healing

Zion, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP)—Mrs. Alexander Dowie, widow of the founder of the Christian Catholic Apostolic Church, has accepted an invitation to return to Zion, seat of the church, and lead the group that opposes the overscership of Wilbur Glenn Voliva.

Mrs. Dowie wrote from Greensburg, O. She said she was convinced the healing power of her late husband had been transmitted to her. She plans to conduct services in Bethesda House, headquarters of the "Independents," and bless and lay hands on the afflicted who wish to be healed, her friends say.

Chinese Crippled Boy Taken to Shrine

all-day prayers at the grave failed to bring relief. Having no place to go, he said, they applied to cemetery authorities for permission to sleep in the chapel. They are determined to stay till the boy is benefited.

Up until midnight the winding line of faithful which began at dawn, continued through the cemetery gates. During the day several more cures were reported, and many ambulances, carrying faithful to their prayers, were seen.

WAR FLIER PRAYS

One of the most touching scenes of the day was presented by a crippled World War veteran, whose plane, zipped by German shot, fell to the earth in France more than 11 years ago.

He is Edward Cantar, and his home is on Crotona Park, East New York city. He came to the shrine with his mother, bouyed up by hope that strength would be restored to his crippled left arm and left leg, which have been of little use to him since the day his plane crashed on the battlefield of Verdun.

Taking his place in one of the two lines, he knelt, lifted his head high and prayed aloud in simple and unashamed fervor.

"Oh, Lord," he said, "help me to regain my lost health. I gave what I had in the World War. Give me back my strength. And restore to health all the helpless boys who received their injuries as I received mine."

A woman who has been bedridden for seven years was brought to the shrine in an ambulance which had conveyed her from Brooklyn, N. Y. She is Mrs. Mary Keenen, 35, a victim of arthritis.

Edward Casey, 29, of Somerset st., Somerville, N. J., waited in an automobile for his turn at the grave. Injured in an automobile accident, he is helplessly crippled in both legs. He declared he felt "fine" on being carried back to the car, but there was no indication of change in him.

Mrs. Marietta Emma was brought to the grave from her home in Providence, R. I., in a taxicab, suffering from a rheumatic condition that has crippled her for several years she said. After a few moments in prayer at the grave of Father Power, she was able to take a few halting steps, with crutch. But had to be lifted back into the cab in a condition approaching collapse.

Mrs. Guild, widow of the former governor, was driven to the grave in her car in the early morning, with her sister, Mrs. John Lavell and a friend, Mrs. Catherine O'Neill. Mrs. Lavell has been ill, and Mrs. Guild came to pray for her recovery.

Several "cures" were reported during the day, perhaps the most interesting case being that of Francis Maggio, 18, of Waverly st., Everett. Maggio was one of the first pilgrims to come to the shrine, and has been there every day for the past three weeks, hobbling on crutches as a result of old leg injuries.

He was brought to the cemetery gate in an automobile, got out with aid and then walked the 300 yards to the grave and back to the car without support. Previously he has been reported as having made attempts each day to place his weight on his feet, but without avail.

Anthony Kabinsky, 18, of Second st., New York, came to the shrine suffering from a lung infection. He declared, after praying in the crowded All Souls' Chapel near the shrine, that he felt some relief.

Perina Bethuel, seven, of Hewer st., Framingham, who has been helpless from the hips down for many years, according to her mother, declared she was able to walk better after being held erect at the side of the grave.

William Duchette, 45, of Gottstown, N. H., who was carried to the shrine by friends, suffering from a paralytic conditions of a year's standing, walked away from the shrine leaning on the arm of a friend, and helped by support of a cane. He stated he had been unable to walk for 12 months previous.

CHARGE POLICE SHIELD MATE IN SLAVE CASE

U. S. Agents Seek Facts in Failure of Suspected Cop to Appear in "Lineup"

Federal officials today were seeking the facts surrounding the action of a ranking police official in excusing from a lineup at Station 1 a patrolman suspected of relations with white slavers.

Helen Bryer, 17-year-old daughter of a New York policeman, rescued from the hands of North End white slavers, was to have viewed the lineup and endeavored to have identified a patrolman against whom she made charges.

This lineup, which entered into the controversy between Police Commissioner Wilson and Senator Joseph J. Mulhern, has not taken place, although the girl's statement was made October 12.

The girl has been available from time to time, particularly since November 14, when she testified with other witnesses before the federal grand jury investigating white slave cases.

The lineup was eventually ordered for last Monday night by Capt. Arthur B. McConnell of Division 1. During his absence, however, a police official excused the suspected patrolman from taking part in the evening rollcall. When this fact was learned Miss Bryer was not taken to the station and no further arrangements have been made by police officials.

Federal authorities admitted they had been informed the lineup did not take place, but said their information was not obtained from official sources.

They also admitted that Department of Justice agents are working in the North End and other communities in an attempt to find and question several persons who had intimate knowledge of the house where the Bryer girl was an inmate.

It was learned for the first time today that among the witnesses who appeared before the grand jury on November 14 were two who had not previously testified.

This was taken to mean that the federal case is far from complete, an inference borne out by the admission that under cover men are still busy here.

Garrett Welcomed by King of Italy

Rome, Nov. 20 (AP)—United States Ambassador John W. Garrett submitted his credentials to King Victor Emanuel at the Quirinal palace today. Later he introduced the members of the embassy staff, most of whom met the King during the incumbency of Ambassador Fletcher.

Gala state coaches took the new ambassador from his residence to the palace. Royal palace guard rendered military honors as he entered, accompanied by Count Cellere, one of the King's gentlemen in waiting.

BARONESS SUED FOR $500,000 BY SON-IN-LAW

Divorced Husband of Her Daughter Brings a Slander Charge

New York, Nov. 20—Suits against Baroness Marie Louise de Hapsburg for $500,000 on charges of slander and defamation of character have been filed by her son-in-law, Raoul Alevra, in Supreme Court here.

As Mrs. Alfred E. Norris, the baroness was a conspicuous figure in New York and Newport society. Alevra, former Rumanian diplomat and confidant of Queen Marie, married her daughter, Dorothy Louise Norris, on September 4, 1920, at Narragansett Pier. The wedding was an important event in the exclusive colony there.

Alevra's complaint alleges that his mother-in-law told untrue things about him that greatly injured his good name, fame, reputation and credit.

Remarks credited to the baroness, as quoted from the complaint, are that he was:

"A liar and a drunkard, lazy and good for nothing, a foreign leech; he had stolen his wife's jewelry, gambled away her income, and she had to support him during his married life."

Alevra's wife obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce in April, 1928, but he asserts in his complaint that it is invalid because obtained "by collusion and fraud upon the court."

MANY POISONED BY POLISH

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Chicago Department of Health believes it has discovered the cause of several hundred cases of food poisoning which in recent months have been mistakenly diagnosed as ptomaine.

Seventeen persons were poisoned at a hotel banquet a month ago, Dr. Arnold Kegel, health commissioner, said, and this case supplied data on which the department made its investigation. The poisoning was traced to a chemical used in polishing silverware.

"Dishwashers are usually none too careful about such things," Dr. Kegel said. "Not knowing the polish was poisonous, they were probably not as particular about removing it as they should have been."

As an emergency measure, Dr. Kegel said he would prohibit the use of the poison for silver polishing in public places.

There have been no deaths from the poison, Dr. Kegel said, but many cases of serious illness.

LOST IN STOCK MARKET

When the girl's parents offered objections to their plans to wed, the couple eloped. Thalia was born a year later.

Anastasides sometimes known by the name of Dr. Augustine, grasgnuily amassed a fair-sized fortune and an excellent professional practice.

Then came a rift. The couple quarrelled and parted. The wife took Thalia, with permission of the court. The husband fought for the child, however, and was recently awarded custody.

The wife, according to the police, went to live in the dentist's home, not in the role of wife but as a housekeeper, so that she might be near her child.

Mrs. Anastasides entered a suit for separation.

EVIDENCE OF FIGHT

The combined trouble, with the question of Thalia's final custody to be settled, is believed to have unstrung the dentist. He visited with his wife as they awaited Thalia's return from school. A quarrel started anew. The wife's body bore evidence of a fight.

Thalia came home, greeted her parents and went to her room. Then, according to the police version, tragedy broke loose.

The wife dropped to the floor, dead, with bullets in her head and chest. Anastasides raced to the playroom. Thalia died even while she probably thought it was some new kind of a game her father was playing. She was shot through the head.

Anastasides then went to the bathroom, closed the door and shot himself through the mouth.

Man Hurt in Blast Dies in Hospital

Leominster, Nov. 20 (AP)—Joseph N. Martelle, 28, who was injured in an explosion at the plant of the Dupont-Viscoloid Company, died today at the Leominster Hospital. Four others were injured in the blast. All received burns. The explosion occurred when chemical fumes became ignited by a spark from a workman's tool.

Martelle was a native of Lawrence. He is survived by a widow and his parents.

HUB OFFICIALS PLEDGE AID TO HOOVER PLAN

Chamber of Commerce Will Co-operate With Leaders for Prosperity

Henry I. Harriman, president, and Melville D. Liming, secretary of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, today voiced their commendation and pledges of co-operation for President Hoover's conference of bankers and business and industrial leaders.

President Harriman said:

If President Hoover's conference accomplishes nothing more than the firm establishment of the people's faith in the nation's fundamental soundness commercially it will have been of great value. What the President really wants, according what information I have received through the newspapers, is voluntary co-operation to insure continued prosperity.

The idea is sound and worthy of deep consideration. With the convention of industrial, agricultural, labor and other leaders we may look for gratifying results.

Mr. Liming declared:

"The President's effort will command the sympathetic interest not merely of business men but of the general public. The possibilities for good are, of course, far-reaching and the time most opportune.

"Manufacturers, merchants, bankers, farmers, laborers, business and professional people in general know that the country needs reasonable stability and reasonable confidence in its immediate future.

"They are glad to oin the President in declaring that 'any lack of confidence in the economic future or the basic strength of business in the United States is foolish,' and they are glad that it is applying his high qualities of leadership to the nation's commercial and industrial problems in his characteristically direct and aggressive style.

"The President's plan will do much to provide a job for all who have the will to work.'"

way and marine equipment that have grown out of Mr. Hoover's campaign in the five years that have elapsed since the original announcement of his plans.

Owing to the funeral of Secretary James W. Good of the War Department, Mr. Hoover's schedule of conference with the leaders of American economic endeavor was postponed until tomorrow, when there will be a discussion of what the manufacturing and industrial field can do to aid business.

Through the operation of mail contract awards and loans from the $250,000,000 fund established by the Jones-White law to assist in the expansion of the Merchant Marine, the administration expects the shipyards to be humming with activity within the space of six months.

Plans to bring this about were announced by Postmaster-General Brown, speaking for the interdepartmenial committee on ocean mail contracts.

Contracts will go to the lowest bidder, Mr. Brown said, and the construction of a total of 40 new large and fast vessels is planned by companies which have indicated an intention of submitting bids.

"In all probability," the Postmaster-General asserted, "another six months will see the shipyard capacity of the country completely filled."

Mr. Brown revealed that new liners for the North Atlantic service estimated to cost approximately $25,000,000 have been planned.

"Wet-Dry" to Call for Early Trial

Marion, Ill., Nov. 20 (INS)—"I will finish my business here and leave for Washington either Friday or Saturday to ask for an early trial," Representative Everett E. Dixon said today.

The Illinois Congressman, who is a leading dry, was indicted in Washington for violation of the liquor laws.

Kipling Ordered Abroad for Health

London, Nov. 20 (AP)—Rudyard Kipling, who has sung the praises and faults of the British Empire for nearly half a century, must go abroad for his health.

The physician of the poet and author has so ordered, advising also cancellation of a radio speech by Mr. Kipling scheduled for December 12. Kipling will be 64 years old next month.

Slain By Harvard Graduate Suicide

A fight over custody of his child is believed to have driven Dr. Augustin G. Anastasides, Harvard dental graduate, to kill his wife and daughter, Thalia, aged nine years, in the family's New York apartment, and then commit suicide. The slain woman was formerly Sappho Kouroyes. When she eloped 10 years ago she was known as "the West End's most beautiful girl."

Wings Are Placed on Wilkins' Planes

Deception Island, Antarctica, Nov. 20 (via S. S. Melville and KUP, San Francisco Examiner wireless station)—Our Lockheed machines appear like things of the air again. Stripped of their wings they look forlorn, but, during the first calm spell since our arrival, 20 sturdy Norwegian whalers carried the wings from the storehouse and set them on the fuselage, and now the planes are practically assembled.

There has been persistent bad weather ever since we landed, yet working under tarpaulins the engines have been overhauled. Two days' work adjusting the controls, etc., should see the planes ready for flight.

The steamship William Scoresby has been placed at our disposal by the British Colonial Office. She arrived at Deception Island today. She will continue her routine scientific research, yet will remain within call should we need her to establish our base still further south.

LONGER SKIRTS ARE CHANGING MINDS AND MANNERS OF WOMEN

PARIS DECREE REVISES DAYS OF GRANDMA

Milady Adopts New Styles as Husbands Join in Voicing Their Approval

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—American women are changing their clothes, their manner and their minds.

The last variation is scarcely a novelty their husbands are heard to remark. But the others, they say, promise surprising results to figures—both feminine and mathematical.

Skirts have come down and frocks fit the waist. That means new wardrobes that strike friend husband's bank balance a blow.

And when la femme is arrayed in her raiment that dips and sweeps, she finds—unconsciously—the mannags that went with last year's sports clothes don't belong. That means a return to the soft voices and gentle graces which recall grandmother's day.

At first she declared she'd never make the change. The short skirts of yesterday were too comfortable. But she has changed her mind.

ARE FALLING IN LINE

"Ever since the couturiers over in Paris spoke a few public words about clothes several months ago," a well known society woman said recently, "The women in America have spoken a great many loud words about the results, but in private

"About to her friends and especially to her husband—she says they're chic and 'different,' but in the privacy of her dressing room her words have a different sound. There, while she struggles to match trailing hemline to last year's coat, her 1923 figure to her 1929 self, she speaks her mind.

"What is all the shouting about?" asks Mrs. Louise Bellamy, an American woman from Paris, who makes clothes for both French and American women and who now is visiting in America.

CORSET GONE FOR GOOD.

"My customers ask me, 'are we really going to wear long skirts?' The answer is: Just long enough to be graceful, nothing that will interfere with our activities. Aren't you tired of looking at assorted legs?

"And the high waist-line? The young and the very slim can stand the real thing. For the others it will be mostly suggested by tucks and ingenious cutting.

"Corsets? No, no and no. The sensible women will never wear the boned corset again. They are too intelligent. But they will wear a soft elastic girdle around the hips and they will diet and exercise mildly and wisely. The new silhouette is going to benefit both the figure and the health."

Girl Bound and Gagged by Robbers

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two well-dressed robbers bound and gagged Miss Bernadine Holmes, 30, in her West End ave. apartment and escaped after robbing her of jewels she said were worth $7000.

Miss Holmes told police the men struck her with their fists when she stepped into the hallway, forcing her back into her apartment. One held her while the other tied her hands and feet and fastened a gag over her mouth with adhesive tape.

Hoover "Mosaic" on Sale at High Price

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—An autographed mosaic of triangles, circles, parallelograms and spiders' webs, purporting to be by President Hoover, is on sale at a dealer's. The President has a habit of scribbling such designs on waste paper when listening to callers.

As explained by the dealer, one visitor was so fascinated that he obtained the paper with the presidential signature, then sold it. The price asked is described as a fair portion of the presidential salary.

Fog Signal Station Keeper Commended

Washington, Nov. 20—W. H. Woodward, keeper of the Manana Island fog signal station, Maine, has been commended by the Commissioner of Lighthouses for the valuable assistance rendered him in saving a power trawler which became disabled off Monhegan Island on Nov. 6.

With the aid of his motorboat, Mr. Woodward succeeded in towing the trawler a distance of two miles through a choppy sea.

2000 CHINESE DIE IN BATTLE

London, Nov. 20 (INS)—Heavy casualties in the fighting along the Manchurian frontier between Chinese and Soviet troops were reported today in dispatches from the far east.

According to a Mukden dispatch to the Times, Soviet troops, supported by tanks, airplanes and artillery, captured the important cities of Dalainor and Manchuli. Two thousand Chinese are reported killed thus far, and the fighting is continuing.

Soviet airplanes, the message continues, have invaded Hsuan-Chengsze and Li-Shuhan, near Mishan. They are reported to have attacked Hei-Ho, opposite Blagovaschenck.

2 BANKERS FACE LOBBY INQUIRY

Washington, Nov. 20 (INS)—Broadening the scope of its work, the Senate lobby investigating committee today planned to learn about a statement of Fred I. Kent, New York Bankers' Trust Co. director, that the Democratic insurgent coalition in the tariff fight was the cause of the recent stock market crash.

Kent will be questioned by two Democrats, Caraway, Arkansas, chairman, and Walsh, Montana; two insurgent Republicans, Borah, Idaho, and Blaine, Wisconsin, and one regular Republican, Robinson, Indiana.

Another banker, Gordon S. Rentschler, president of the National City Bank, New York, was scheduled to follow Kent and testify regarding interests working for and against a high sugar tariff.

Mrs. Gildea Touched by Scenes at Shrine

This is the second of a series of articles by Mrs. Mary Power Gildea, a niece of the Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Power, in which she gives her impression of the shrine of her uncle in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, to the readers of the Boston Evening American.

By MARY POWER GILDEA

In my first story for the readers of the Boston Evening American I tried to tell of happenings I had seen at the shrine of the Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Power and my opinion as to what caused them. Today I shall give a word picture of the scene in Holy Cross cemetery.

Evidences of the mighty throngs which filled the cemetery were noticeable as far away as the Everett terminal of the Elevated. There, on the platforms, were crowded the most pitable collection of human beings I have ever seen.

Mothers leading older children by the hand. Children with the faces of old men and women. Their tiny bodies wracked with pain. Grown-ups dragging their useless limbs after them, as they hobbled along on crutches. Blind men being led by friends or relatives.

As I alighted with my daughter at the main entrance to the cemetery I received my first shock. Tumbled down buildings across the street from the hallowed ground where lie the bodies of my ancestors had become hastily constructed lunch rooms. Hawkers were crying out their wares. The sacredness of the shrine meant nothing to them. It was business.

I thought of the story in the Bible which told of how our Lord banished the traders from the temple. I feel such persons should be made to move to a reasonable distance from the scene of the shrine, for there in Holy Cross cemetery, within hearing distance of the merchants cries, the devout were reverently praying.

Perhaps I am a bit old fashioned, but it seems to me there should be peace and quiet at so sacred a shrine. The shrine is not a worldly place, it is a section of paradise, placed on this earth that we mortals might go to it and ask forgiveness of our sins.

Inside the gates of the cemetery was gathered probably the largest crowd I had ever seen. For yards on either side of the path where the shrine is located long lines of the pious and faithful were waiting patiently in line for the chance to kneel in supplication.

A gentlemanly policeman requested those near the gate to step aside for a moment. Then I saw an ambulance roll into the grounds. Through the large glass windows I saw a woman lying on a stretcher. There was a divine light shining in her face. She was able to move her head slightly, and I saw her smile hopefully.

More policemen and several firemen were aiding persons near the shrine. Here and there I saw the button of the American Legion. I later learned that many of those men, although assigned to cover the grave six days a week, were giving up their days off to help other less fortunate than themselves.

It brought back to me the stories my father told me of Father Power. His spirit of sacrifice, his devotion and his love for his fellow-men.

I thought, too, of the tomb of the Rev. Fr. John Power, back in Ireland. His grave is also a shrine and the sick and ailing go there for heavenly aid. Fr. John Power was an uncle of the Rev. Fr. Patrick Power, before whose shrine I was kneeling.

My own beloved uncle, Fr. Patrick, I reflected, was the seventh of a line of priests in the family.

And when I finished my supplications and had recited my rosary I could not help but think of those hawkers outside the gates for whom this was a Roman holiday.

5 DRIVEN OUT IN BARN FIRE

Georgetown, Nov. 20—Flames, racing from an adjoining barn today drove Mrs. Raymond Dalton and her four small children from the family summer home in one of the most spectacular blazes that the countryside has ever witnessed.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started in the large barn where two valuable automobiles were housed and rapidly spread to the two-and-a-half-story house. Fire Chief Sherman Lee laid 1700 feet of hose from a brook to fight the flames.

Damage was set at $8000 by Chief Lee. Mr. Dalton, who is connected with the National City Bank of New York, was away.

The place is located two-and-a-half miles from the center of Georgetown. The barn and all its contents were destroyed and the house badly destroyed.

Reports Improvement After Visit

Mrs. Marietta Emnca of Opper st., Providence, who has suffered from paralysis in her legs for several years, was brought to the shrine in a taxi. After being wheeled to the grave and praying there, the woman said she felt improved. (Staff photo).

CAPITAL PAYS LAST HONORS TO GOOD

Body of War Secretary Goes West With High Officials and Military Guard

Washington, Nov. 20 (INS)—Last honors were paid in the capital today to Secretary of War James W. Good, who died Monday.

After resting all night in a private chapel with a military guard of honor of 14 enlisted men under the command of Capt. Alexander Bolling, the body was taken to the White House with a military escort comprised of the second squadron of the Third Cavalry, under Maj. John T. McClean.

In the East Room it lay in state Services were conducted at 11 o'clock, at which Rev. J. R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York ave. Presbyterian church, former President Coolidge's house of worship, officiated.

Only public officials, members of the diplomatic corps and intimate personal friends of the Good family were present, but from 12 o'clock until 1 o'clock was arranged for the personnel of the War Department to pay last respects to their former chief.

The men with whom Mr. Good sat in the cabinet have been named honorary pallbearers, with Acting Secretary of War Patrick Hurley.

The body will be placed aboard a special train for Cedar Rapids, Ia., and will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James Coombs, the latter Mr. Good's sister; Mrs John Fletcher, Mrs. Good's sister; Secretary of the Navy Adams, Senator Dineen, Illinois; Senator Brookhart and Representative Cole, Iowa; Acting Secretary of War Hurley, Assistant Secretary of War Trubee Davison, Major-General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, and Captain George J. Foster, his aide.

Government departments here, by proclamation issued by Secretary of State Stimson under the President's authority, closed until 1 p. m. today, and the flag will be displayed at half-mast until Friday noon, the hour of the funeral.

A War Department order directed that a gun be fired at half-hour intervals, beginning one hour after reveille today, at all military posts, and that all officers wear the military mourning badge on coat and sabre. National and regimental colors will be draped in mourning for one month, and 19 guns will be fired at every army post at the funeral hour.

Stock Victims' Grit Astonishes Wallace

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—The most impressive spectacle America has to offer is the stock market, English writer of mystery stories, is the way men and women came up smiling, Charles T. Wallace, Wall Street. "I have never seen disaster faced with such courage and good humor; never heard fewer squawks."

THREE FAITHS IN A PLEA FOR TOLERANCE

Ford Hall Assemblage Greets Speakers and Punctuates Addresses With Applause

Pleas for tolerance, made by representatives of the three chief religious groups of Boston were roundly applauded at the meeting in Ford Hall, at which the Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., representing the Catholics; the Rev. William L. Sidger, representing the Protestants, and Rabbi Harry Levi, representing the Jewish faith spoke.

The rabbi was the first speaker and admitted it was the best congregation he had ever seen because "you are all here on time for the services."

He admitted that prejudices come about because we do not understand each other and because of the lack of understanding the Jews have suffered greatly. He said that the Jews were kept in a Ghetto which kept them apart from others and they were unable to understand things. He charged that the unofficial Ghetto exists today.

WITHOUT PREJUDICE

Fr. Ahern in opening said: "The fact that I am here is proof that I have no prejudices and if you have any you want to get rid of them." He explained that his boyhood chums happened to be a Jew and a Protestant. He said he never thought of their religion and that they always got along without thinking of matters concerning religion.

He also recounted the fact that he allowed a Jewish student to continue his studies in a Catholic college even after the boy did not have the tuition fee to continue.

Dr. Stidger also recounted a recent experience when he met three Jewish men on a transatlantic voyage. He admitted that he had certain prejudices at the start of the trip which was overcome in a short time when he began to know and understand his fellow travelers.

"Do you respect the belief and convictions of the Atheists?" was the first question asked Father Ahearn. "If respect means do I agree with him, I do not. If he has good reasons I respect him and expect like treatment," was the answer.

Rabbi Levi was asked from the gallery whether it wasn't true that the churches were seeking power and control. He answered by saying in tha they were not and pointed out the fact that there are plenty of mortgages on churches.

RELIGION AS BASIS

The rabbi in answer to another question said that he believed in the New Testament. "I have a profound respect for the figure of Jesus. He was proud of the fact that Jesus was born and lived as a Jew although I do not recognize his divinity."

Answering another questioner, Fr. Ahearn explained that the church established parochial schools separate from the State because the Catholic Church believes that a child can not be properly trained without a basis of religion.

Dr. Stidger said he would vote for a Catholic as President of the United States if he thought the Catholic was best qualified for office. In fact, he added, he welcomed the time when he could so vote.

The three speakers rose together and jointly answered a question as to whether they knew of any better way of developing tolerance than by the method employed last night. "No we don't," they said in unison.

Rabbi Levi said that he did approve of any religion trying to get converts.

Radio Commission Can't Pay Employes

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—There is little of the thanksgiving spirit among the employes of the Radio Commission, with only about $200 in the treasury of the commission's pay roll, salaries totaling well over $15,000.

The situation became acute when the commission received a ruling from Comptroller General McCarl, saying the Department of Commerce, under the law, could not loan the commission enough to meet its payroll.

Wife in England; Teacher Divorced

Worcester, Nov. 20—Judge Harry H. Atwood in probate court granted a divorce to Charles H. Jordan of Shrewsbury, a teacher in the High School of Commerce here and instructor in Northeastern University, from Beatrice Jordan of Sussex, England.

Desertion was charged. The couple were married in Jersey City in March, 1926.

Mexican Bandits Hang 3 by Thumbs

Aguas Calientes, Mex., Nov. 20 (AP)—Of seven men kidnaped by bandits from a ranch near here, three were found hanged by their thumbs to telegraph poles, some distance away. One had died of the torture.

Troops have been sent in pursuit of the bandits in hope of rescuing the other four men.

CAVEMAN NEAR END OF GRIND IN WOODS

By BURT M. McCONNELL

Bear-Trap Lake Portage, Que., Nov. 10 (by Courier to Normandin) —When I came up here, seven weeks ago, they were planning to hold an election in New York city; wonder if it came off?

I haven't seen a newspaper since the 18th of September . . . Nor a mirror . . . Nor a comb and brush . . . Nor tooth-paste . . . Nor a razor, bath-towel, cake of soap, or other civilized "necessities."

All my friends will be "razing" me for the rest of my life, I suppose. But I don't care; I've lost about 12 pounds and five inches of waistline and, with the exception of the first week, I've had a most enjoyable time . . . I can highly recommend the meat-diet for those who want to reduce. . . .

Which reminds me! I wonder what the folks are having for dinner tonight? . . . . It looks as if I am going to miss that turkey and pumpkin pie on Thanksgiving.

Let's see, I shall have to get out my Tuxedo and overcoat . . . Did I put 'em in the wardrobe trunk, or in the steamer trunk? . . . That's the worst of having two trunks; you never know where things are . . . Maybe my wife knows . . . Hope Jermane, Seattle Times correspondent, invites me to the Gridiron Club dinner, as he did last year. That'll be one good feed, under my belt . . . Although, as I recall, it costs me 50 dollars every time I go to Washington. And I could buy a lot of dinners with 50 dollars . . . Besides, I shall have to have my evening clothes altered to fit the new waist-line—or order a new full-dress outfit . . . Heavens! I may have to order a complete wardrobe, now that I am almost back to normal weight. What a staggering thought—to a person partly of Scotch descent! . . .

Come to think of it, I am back to normal in many ways. When I left the Big Town in September, I was in what was, for me, a highly nervous condition. I needed a change. Ten years in the same office were showing their cumulative effect; I was fit a rut.

Half an inch of snow last night; there'll be a foot on the ground before the 20th; two feet, perhaps, by the 25th. And I am not due to leave until the 27th . . . The messenger who comes sixty miles for these dispatches can no longer use his canoe; the Washimeska and the lake at its lower end are completely frozen over, so he will have to make his next trip by dog-team and sled. . . . How about it, newspapers? . . . I have proved that this thing can be done; why stay after the 24th, burning up the Chief Forester's wood and catching (?) poor little cotton-tails? . . .

If only I could transport one of these spruce-bordered lakes to some spot with 20 miles of New York city, it would be worth $100,000. . . . Wonder where we will live in the metropolis? There is a colony of artists, and a group of writers, but, as far as I know, there's no aggregation of cave-dwellers. . . .

The Weather

For Boston and vicinity—Fair and slightly colder tonight and Thursday; moderate winds, mostly northwest; the minimum temperature tonight will be near 30.

For southern New England—Mostly cloudy and somewhat colder tonight and Thursday; moderate winds mostly north and northwest.

For Northern New England—Mostly cloudy and somewhat colder tonight and Thursday; moderate winds mostly northwest.

For Eastern New York—Cloudy tonight and Thursday; probably snow flurries in interior tonight; somewhat colder tonight and in the southeast portion Thursday; moderate winds mostly north and northwest.

OCEAN FORECAST

Steamers departing today for European ports will have moderate northwest winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

CLUBWOMEN PLEDGE HELP IN SIGN BAN

Clubwomen are determined that the natural resources of the country be conserved, and vow that the beauty of the highways will not be defaced by billboards, hot-dog shacks and other abominations erected for profit.

Bay State clubwomen in a silent pledge assured their support to Mrs. Daniel Goodridge, chairman of the department for the State Federation of Women's Clubs, at her get-together conference at the University Club. Speakers urged the co-operation of the women and extolled the possibilities of success if they but cement protracted programs with personal effort.

Dr. W. Elmer Ekblau of Clark University urged the women to hold up to the youth of the country the ideal of a nation great because of its spiritual wealth rather than its material assets, although the latter are necessary in a measure.

He predicted a rennaissance of culture and art for America for which the young girls and boys would be largely responsible.

"America stands on a threshold of a renaissance of culture and art that will pale the grandeur of the Roman ages into insignificance," he told them. "It will be a rennaissance of realities, in a sense esthetic, and of the soul and the mind. That only God can make a tree must be impressed upon the youth of the day."

Greetings of the State Federation were brought by Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, first vice-president. Mrs. Goodridge presided and lauded many individual clubs for the splendid improvements in towns and communities for which they were directly responsible.

She told of the State forest, the State Federation some day hoped to attain.

Dr. Ekblau, talking on "The Inspiration of the Forest," urged the women continuously to hold before the eyes of youth the intrinsic value of natural beauty and its paramount relation to a beautiful life.

Questioned from the floor by an attending club woman, Dr. Ekblau added that a co-ordinated policy of utilization must continue.

"The automobile has converted us into a race of nomads. It is a common sight through the flower seasons to see millions of blossoms torn up by the roots and carried away in the autos of one whose sole desire is to get a bigger ca- than his neighbors, disregarding the fact that the flowers will live but a day or two even if they survive the journey home.

"Th- seems to have developed in Americans a disposition to grab everthing in sight, providing it is free, whether they really want it or not, and without a thought that they are depriving others of pleasure they have an equal right to enjoy."

Local chairmen of conservation of natural resources were urged by Mrs. Goodridge to communicate with her for further information and speakers for any details along conservation lines.

PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUB

Mrs. Malcom E. Nichols, brought the greetings of the city to the club's first luncheon of the season at the Hotel Statler.

Introduced by Mrs. Mabel Mann Jordan, newly elected president of the club, two members of theatrical productions now in Boston were applauded.

Miss Elsie Ferguson in her "Fergusonian" voice, which borders on the Barrymore style of delivery, told of "life impossible, even New York" and of her anticipation for rest and comfort and peace in a tour of the country with her present vehicle.

She lauded the "charming hospitality" of Boston and its opportunity to serve her as a "haven of rest."

But the theater—

Discuss Conservation

Mrs. Alice B. Harrington Miss Elizabeth Hubbard

Mrs. Alice B. Harrington of Waltham, vice chairman and Miss Elizabeth Hubbard, secretary, at state conservation meeting of Women's Club at University Club. Conservation of forest lands and natural beauty spots was discussed by speakers, and the public habit of raiding such places of flowers, shrubs, etc., was condemned.

tion of theatrical material and the drama in general. She took the occasion at this luncheon to speak her views on the prolonged lack of suitable material for the theater, and assuring the ladies, facetiously no doubt, that if "in the ater doesn't provide suitable material in the near future" she would take up the study of the law and apply for membership in the Professional Women's Club.

Mrs. Jordan read many regrets of people scheduled to appear and among them was that of Pres. Ada Comstock of Radcliffe College, who had previously accepted.

More than 500 professional women attended the luncheon, representative of all the professions into which woman has gone and succeeded. Such a galaxy of successful business women never before congregated in the city.

WOMEN'S CITY CLUB

A resume of the 25th anniversary congress of the International Alliance for Suffrage and Citizenship, which met in Berlin last June, was given by Mrs. Mary Tenney Healy, president of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, who was guest speaker at the luncheon of City Club.

She told of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt's message to the congress to the effect that "There is nothing women want that they cannot achieve if they will."

Mrs. Healy was the only Bostonian at the Berlin Congress.

Forty-two nationalities were represented at the congress, Mrs Healy said. Though the largest delegation was from the Scandinavian countries, 25 women, members of the League of Women Voters, from all parts of the United States were present.

The question of protective legislation for women, which proved a bone of contention, was resolved by referring the matter to a commission for a three-year international investigation, the speaker said.

Miss Frances C. Curtis, president of the City Club, introduced Mrs. Healy. Others who attended the luncheon included Mrs. Frank Chouteau Brown, Mrs. Willard Woodbury, president of Boston League of Women Voters; Mrs Delano Wight, Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, Mrs Carl L. Watson and Mrs. True Worthy White.

BOSTON ROOMING HOUSE ASSOCIATION

An organization, founded eleven years ago and dedicated to the purpose of bettering rooming house conditions. CHENEY'S WINTERGREEN CREAM LINIMENT

The Indians called Wintergreen Oil "Wonderful Wintergreen," because it lubricates the joints and muscles, because it relieves neuralgia, soreness, pain and rheumatism, inflammation from sprains, burning of chilblains, neuralgic pains.

Relieves chest and bronchial inflammation, preventing pneumonia and other more serious troubles.

It is delightful to use, as it consists of Wintergreen Oil mixed with other valuable oils into a white creamy liniment.

It rubs in dry, being completely absorbed.

Others call it wonderful. You be the Judge.

PARDON SOUGHT FOR REPORTERS BY LA GUARDIA

Washington, Nov. 20—After a call upon the three Washington newspaper reporters held at the District of Columbia jail for contempt of court, Rep. LaGuardia, Republican, New York, proposed that the President should pardon the trio.

They were simply carrying out their duties in telling the simple truths about prohibition, LaGuardia said, adding that while they were in jail bootleggers still were at liberty and doing business "with the full knowledge of the court and the authorities."

The reporters, Linton Burkett, Gorman Hendricks and Jack Nevin, Jr., were sentenced to 45 days each for contempt of court in refusing to give the grand jury certain requested information about bootleggers they had obtained in preparing a series of articles on crime conditions in Washington.

"Surely public opinion of the country should come to the rescue and prevail upon President Hoover to exercise his presidential prerogative and pardon these men with the thanks of the nation for having performed their duty and rendered a great public service," LaGuardia said.

Feared Scenes at Princess' Funeral

Bonn, Prussia, Nov. 20—A police statement said that Alexander Bubkoff, husband of the late Princess Victoria, sister of the former Kaiser, was arrested last week because it was feared he would bring about unpleasant incidents in connection with the funeral.

He was said to have expressed the intention of claiming Victoria's body as her legitimate husband and removing it. His permanent expulsion is imminent.

PIES . . . and 2 Pastry Shortcuts

Canadian Pineapple Pie

Between the crusts of this pie is a story that dates back to olden days when sailing vessels plied the seas from England to the Indies and brought home silks, spices and the rare, exotic fruit—pineapple.

"So expensive it was," says the originator of this recipe, "that it was served only to guests one wished to honor. And thus it became the symbol of hospitality—beds in the guest rooms had pineapples carved on the posts and some houses bore the symbol above their doorways. That is why, centuries later, pineapple pie is our company pie." And how good it is in a crust made with Crisco—a shortening that lends sweet and fresh just as it comes from the can!

¾ cup pineapple juice
¼ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons Crisco
2 egg yolks beaten light
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons pastry flour

Mix flour, salt and sugar. Add to beaten egg yolks. Add fruit juices to this mixture and cook until thick in double boiler. Remove from fire and add grated pineapple. Line pie-plate with Crisco pastry. Brush with melted Crisco to prevent soaking. Pour in the filling. Moisten edges of crust with water. Cover with pastry and bake 10 minutes in hot oven (450° F.). Reduce heat to moderate (350° F.) and continue baking for 25 minutes.

These recipes have been tested and approved by cooking authorities. You will get best results by using level measurements and the ingredients specified.

Flakier Pie Crust

with two time-saving suggestions

Pie crust made with Crisco is flakier, more tender. Sweeter-tasting, too, because Crisco tastes so sweet and fresh—yes, actually sweet and pure all by itself!

To save time in pie-baking, you can keep this pastry dough, already mixed, in the ice-box for a week and bake a crust just when you need it. It will stay sweet, because Crisco itself stays sweet. And the thorough chilling will make the crust even flakier than usual.

Or you can keep unbaked pastry-shells in the ice-box always ready for use. Then when you want a pie, just put in your filling, pop the pie into the oven and bake.

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup Crisco
6 to 8 tablespoons cold water
¾ teaspoon salt

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut Crisco in well with two knives. Add water gradually and only enough to hold mixture together. Roll ⅛ inch thick on floured board. For baked shell, take half of recipe and cover inverted pie-plate. Leave enough dough to fold back to make a firm edge. Prick well with fork to prevent bubbles. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 12 minutes. For two crust pie, bake at 450° F. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to moderate (350° F.) and bake until filling is done.

Criss-Cross Apple Pie

Up in the Kentucky hills is an old hotel famous for its pies. Every day the menu lists three kinds: "Open, criss-cross and covered—all apple."

The criss-cross pie was so different and so good that I brought the recipe home. The pie crust, of course, was Crisco crust. For while their ice supply was uncertain, their pie crusts couldn't be. They knew that Crisco always stood for sweetness and freshness in shortening (and pie crust) no matter where the thermometer stood.

6 large apples sliced thin
⅔ cup brown sugar
⅔ cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon flour (pastry)
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons Crisco

Line pie-plate with pastry. Brush with melted Crisco to prevent soaking. Place a layer of apples in crust, sprinkle with part of mixture of dry ingredients. Dot with bits of Crisco. Proceed with similar layers until crust is filled, ending with sugar mixture and Crisco on top. Cover with narrow pastry strips to form lattice work. Moisten ends of latticed pastry first so they'll stick to lower crust. Follow baking directions for double pie crust in standard pastry recipe.

CRISCO was used in the Cooking School recently conducted by this paper

Mrs. Lilla Pauline Cross, in the American Cooking School, made a point of modern methods in cooking. Naturally, then, she uses Crisco, the modern shortening. Not only is Crisco easy to use; in addition, it helps you secure better, surer results.

HUB WOOL MEN SEE MENACE

An announcement of the formation of the National Wool Marketing Association, at San Angelo, Tex., was interpreted by Boston wool merchants as the launching of a movement calculated to eliminate them from the sale of wool to consumer in New England and other sections of the country.

The explanation that the organization of a marketing association has been urged upon the wool growers by the federal farm board, and that tentative plans have been made for harmonious co-operation between the new association and the board is not accepted at its face value here.

The belief of local merchants is that promoters have outlined a new co-operative selling scheme which they believe will make unnecessary the maintenance of relationships which have existed for many years between the growers, either individually or through their co-operative association and the Boston dealers.

Expel Eight After College Liquor Raid

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP)—Disciplinary action assumed drastic proportions on the University of Illinois campus today.

The aftermath to the liquor raid on the Gamma Eta Gamma house brought expulsion to eight members of the fraternity and to another student involved.

The fraternity itself was ordered to show cause why it should not be disbanded. W. J. Sherman, of Crown Point, Ind., who was fined $500 and costs after pleading guilty to possession of the 12 gallons of liquor confiscated in the raid Sunday, was one of those expelled.

New Lawyer

EDWARD L. HEFRON

Edward L. Hefron, assistant manager of the Boston Chamber of Commerce Transportation Bureau, was sworn in as a member of the Massachusetts bar today.

Born in Charlestown, Oct. 18, 1896, Hefron was graduated from the Frothingham grammar school and Charlestown high school.

He was a line billing clerk for the Boston & Maine when the United States entered the World War.

With the end of the war he returned to Boston where he assumed his present duties with the Boston Chamber of Commerce in 1922.

TO FREE WOMAN HE LOVES

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP)—Abe Holzman is making good his pledge to divorce the woman he loves.

Holzman's wife, Helen, was a native of Poland, and she desired to enter the United States four years ago, although the Polish immigration quota had been exhausted. Holzman as a friend offered to marry her, bring her in as his wife and then grant her her freedom.

But Holzman fell in love with his wife. Since then he has tried in vain to win her love.

"I have never even kissed her," Holzman told Judge Sabath. "She is in love with another man now, and I must keep my promise."

The Best Barrier Against Winter's Biting Cold . . .

UNIFORM indoor temperature is good Health Protection. When you go out into cold, blustery weather you guard against the elements. Indoors, you're off guard; varying temperatures cause colds—and a cold may lead to almost anything.

That explains why so many Doctors, in this variable climate, have had Gas Heat installed in their homes—heat that is unvarying, regardless of the weather—automatically kept uniform by thermostatic control, set to the desired temperature—and forgotten.

Thousands of Greater Boston residents have learned this through investigation—on our obligation-free surveys. We base estimates on the exact conditions and heating-service requirements in your home. You know the equipment, installation and operating costs in advance.

Before deciding for or against automatic Gas Heating, consult your heating contractor or let us make a survey for you.

GLEEFULLY HISS CROOK AT APOLLO

The Cast

Characters
Dicey Morris	Albert Lucy
Chandos Bellingham	Harold Heaton
George Medhurst	George Blackwood
Old Tom	Walter Sherwin
Gordon Chumley	Craig Ward
Rose Edgerton	Norma Vail

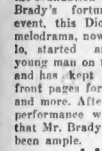
By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IT is a matter of casual rumor, which may be disputed by the gentleman himself, that "After Dark" laid the foundation of William A. Brady's fortune. At any event, this Dion Boucicault melodrama, now at the Apollo, started an ambitious young man on the high roads and has kept him on the front pages for a generation and more. After viewing the performance we should say that Mr. Brady's reward has been ample.

• • •

PERHAPS the most interesting feature of "After Dark" was its grim revelation of what your dad and grandpop had served to them as first-class entertainment. We doubt very much if Mr. Brady, even in those days, could have sponsored such a whirl of flimboyant acting and called it a play. He was too good an actor himself, although his partisan forte in the late Eighties was managing ambitious pugilists. With the profits from "After Dark," we are told, he edged James J. Corbett into what Jack Conway would classify as head man in the cauliflower industry.



Nicholas Young

• • •

IT would appear, therefore, that in spite of its age the play has some claim to attention, if not for its literary value at least as a curiosity. As acted at the Apollo you saw what its latest godfather (perhaps we should say Godmother for Miss Jessie Bonsella is the responsible party) insists is an exact reproduction of the old drama; omitting not a gesture, an aside or the grand manner of acting which, tradition tells us, was the sterling mark of the real artist.

• • •

YES SIREE, they were all there—present and accounted for. And, we suspect, a liberal list of extras was tossed in for good measure. The audience reaction to the echo of a pure heroine, the snarls of a diabolical villain and the daring courage of a virtuous hero was all that could be expected. You could tell with half an ear that the groans and hisses outpointed the cheers by a broad margin, due no doubt to the newer generation's inability to recognize virtue in a modern playhouse as anything to brag about.

• • •

AS a novelty, "After Dark" played a part in the day's scheme of things, but only in a minor role. An earnest program request to the audience to control its high spirits, was generally interpreted as an invitation to make itself heard. It did all that and more—it turned itself loose. The most sober attention of the evening was bestowed upon a replica of an East Side barroom, set up in the lobby. This was a rush of paying customers between the acts. But you couldn't fool us; it was not real beer they served.

Open Hearings on Lowell "Padlock"

Lowell, Nov. 20—Hearings began here before David H. Fulton of Somerville, master, to determine facts in more than a dozen padlock actions brought by the district-attorney against Lowell property owners.

Frederick A. Crafts, assistant district attorney of Middlesex County, is prosecuting officer. Fulton intimated that before he completed his work here he would like to visit each store and tenement block involved.

She's Glorified

MARY EATON

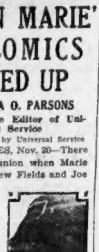
A ZIEGFELD SHOW on the screen comes to the Washington St. Olympia and Uptown next Friday. It is "Glorifying the American Girl," and has Mary Eaton, one of those glorified, in the starring role.

'QUEEN MARIE' OF COMICS SIGNED UP

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20—There was a reunion when Marie Dressler and Lew Fields and Joe Weber got together here in Hollywood. Marie made her first big success with Weber and Fields and the minute they heard that she was in the movies and of the movies they expressed a desire to have her with them in the revue. Hence a part is being written in for Miss Dressler who will troupe alongside of William Collier, Fay Templeton, De Wolfe Hopper and the rest of 'em.



Louella O. Parsons

That reminds me that Marie and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have agreed to make pictures for sometime to come. The contract has just been signed or is just about to be signed. There is a plan afoot now to star Miss Dressler, and of course Polly Moran will share in some of her glory.

• • •

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Al K. Hall dancing with pretty Doris Arbuckle at the Little Club. Wesley Ruggles, Kathryn Crawford, Sally Eilers and Robert Gibson, likewise, among those who spent the evening at this popular social club. Louis Wolheim being invited to teach several beginners the rudiments of contract bridge. Corinne Griffith riding a bicycle to the village from her beach home. Gene Markey lunching at the Montmartre Saturday, also pretty blonde Josephine Dunn, Sam Shipman and Robert Milton discussing New York plays. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

"Officer O'Brien"

BAY STATERS STAR IN MET TALKIE

By HARRIS MORGAN

NEW ENGLAND talent will be seen and heard in the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone all-talking picture "Evidence," at the Metropolitan, tomorrow. Of the stars in the cast, two are from Massachusetts. Pauline Frederick hails from Boston, and William Courtenay is a native of Worcester. Both have won fame on stage and screen; for Mr. Courtenay this new picture will be his talkie debut.

The feature role in "Evidence" is declared to be one that Miss Frederick acts most capably. She plays the part of a wife divorced on the strength of circumstantial evidence—a woman of reserve, resourcefulness and restrained emotion.

• • •

MR. COURTENAY was educated at Holy Cross College, and made his first stage venture when a friend induced him to jump in on short notice to play a part with a Boston stock company. His success changes the course of his whole life. A subsequent part in stock in Portland, Me., was even more enthusiastically received, and he was launched.

Four years later found him with Richard Mansfield with whom he was associated for a number of years. He was later co-starred with Lenore Ulric in "Harem" and he toured the country as star of the mystery play "The Spider" and of "Twelve Miles Out."

Mr. Courtenay will divide time between the legitimate stage and the screen.

Dai Buell Well Received in Pianoforte Recital

Dai Buell, Boston pianist, was heard in recital at Symphony Hall by a good-sized and cordial audience last night. The program of the concert, which was under the auspices of the Musicians' League of Massachusetts, contained Haydn's Sonata in D, Schumann's "Papillons," Liszt's Sonata in B minor, three pieces by Ellen Coleman, heard here for the first time, and shorter works by Gluck, Chopin and Liapounov. The pianist displayed familiar qualities, and was warmly applauded.

LUISA TOSI STARS IN "LUCIA"

By MOSES SMITH

"LUCIA DE LAMMERMOOR," Donizetti's masterpiece which seems to be a perennial favorite with many opera-goers, was given a spirited performance by the Cosmopolitan Opera Co. at the Arlington last night. The feature of the performance was the appearance of Luisa Tosi in the title role.

Mme. Tosi, who sang in concert here earlier in the season and who has had years of experience on the operatic stage, made an engaging Lucia. Quite obviously she was familiar with the routine and traditions of the role. Her choice was used without excesse. In fact her restraint—or perhaps it was modesty—was overdone, so that at times it was difficult to hear her.

But as the evening wore on her production became more free. In the "Mad Scene" she reached a climax of beautiful, noble singing—singing in a style that is not often heard here in opera nowadays. The essential point in this style was the ability to attain musical and emotional effects without the aid of extra-artistic means.

Ugo Martinelli's light and pleasant voice was heard in the part of Edgar. Henry Ashton was sung by Carlo Nitti, who did his best work here to date. The other parts of a rather abbreviated production was acceptably handled.

Mr. Simeoni was once more in the orchestral pit, directing his meagre voices ably and enthusiastically with fine insight for the beauties of Donizetti's score.

Marionettes at Tremont Temple Next Week

Tony Sarg, with his marionettes, is coming to Boston for his annual engagement at the Tremont Temple on November 27, 28, 29 and 30 in a production of "Rip Van Winkle."

The play is offer in seven scenes each teeming with that quaint and fascinating atmosphere so typical of the early Dutch settlers. Two performances will be given each day at 2:15, excepting Thanksgiving day at 3:30. All evening shows will being at 8:15.

Seiter to Direct

William A. Seiter will direct Corinne Griffith in "Back Pay" for First National. It is based on the Fanny Hurst story of the same name.

ORGANIST BIG HIT AT STATE

"HARRY RODGERS at the mighty organ." It is this caption thrown on the screen at Loew's State twice daily that serves to provide for the patrons of this beautiful Back Bay playhouse an added attraction to the unfailingly splendid stage and screen program. Rodgers is recognized as one of the most skilled organists in this country, and has appeared in many of the leading theaters.

Harry Rodgers

He was educated in this city and attended the New England Conservatory of Music as the pupil of Dr. J. Albert Jaffery and Henry M. Dunham.

WOMAN'S FAITH MADE SHRINE YEARS AGO

By BERT BROCKBANK

How did the modest tomb of the Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Power in Holy Cross Cemetery become, almost overnight, a sacred shrine?

Who were the first persons to discover its miraculous healing attributes, which in three short weeks have transformed it into a Mecca for more than a million pilgrims and produced one of the greatest demonstrations of faith in Boston's history?

These questions are asked by many of the thousands who daily flock to the Malden cemetery. Like the world-famous shrines of Our Lady of Lourdes in France and St. Anne De Beaupre in Quebec, cures were reported at the grave of Fr. Power long before it attracted public notice.

REGULAR VISITS

Investigation has discovered that a number of years ago a frail, little gray-haired woman made regular visits to Holy Cross Cemetery and always knelt in prayer at a certain grave in the plot reserved by the archdiocese for priests and nuns.

It was Fr. Power's tomb that she singled out from all others to make supplication for relief from earthly ills. Her visits attracted the attention of other devout persons who periodically went to the cemetery to care for the graves of loved ones.

Especially after a rainfall this woman would be seen dipping her fingers in the water that had gathered around a chalice carved in the tombstone and making the sign of the cross.

TOLD OTHERS

In answer to questions, she quietly answered that she benefited from each visit to the priest's tomb and particularly after anointing herself with the water from the chalice.

Those to whom she made this simple confession of faith were likewise moved to seek relief at the lowly tomb and they, too, professed that miraculous results ensued.

Then the visits of the frail little woman became less frequent and after a time they ceased. It she disclosed her identity to anyone, none has since come forward to reveal it. She has apparently passed on, but the seeds of faith she spread have taken root and increased a millionfold.

SISTERS OBTAIN CURE

Among those who heard the simple story of the unknown pilgrim were Mrs. Nora T. McGrath of Malden, and her sister, Mrs. Katherine Pierce of Chelsea. They frequently visited Holy Cross Cemetery to seek solace among the graves of the departed.

One afternoon they filled a small phial with water from around the chalice on Fr. Power's tombstone, and later, when their brother, John Sweeney, was injured while swimming, they applied some of the water to one of his legs where gangrene had settled. A few days afterward the infection disappeared.

Spasmodic cases such as this became noised abroad, and the number of those visiting the tomb increased. Even then there was no particular notice given to the supposed cures.

PRIEST INVESTIGATES

Three weeks ago, on Sunday, Oct. 27, from his pulpit in St. Joseph's Church in Malden, the Rev. Patrick Walsh informed his flock that reports of miracle cures effected at the grave of Fr. Power had been brought to his attention. He asked that all having information of such cures, or any information concerning the life history of the dead priest, be submitted to him so that he could make an investigation.

Mrs. O'Hearn had reported that she had been cured of deafness which physicians had pronounced incurable, after she has visited at the grave of Fr. Power and applied water from the chalice to her ears.

Miss Viola claimed that she had been cured of a mole affliction on her face, which disappeared after a visit to grave without leaving any scar. She was accompanied on her visit to the shrine by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Marion Viola, also of Malden.

Father of Girl in Death Case Is Dead

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP)—Samuel Smith, 56, father of Mrs. Catherine Smith Heim, committed suicide today by shooting himself. Mr. Smith's daughter is the widow of William Norman Heim, for whose death Robert Hallowell, Amber garage owner, is now on trial for murder in Norristown.

Smith was found dead in the office of Guker Brothers, lumber dealers, where he had been employed as a foreman. Mrs. Heim was cross-examined on the stand yesterday in efforts to discredit her statement that she was secretly married to Heim just before his murder.

Army Uses Movies to Keep Up to Date

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—The moving picture is being put to use by the army in keeping up with the advancement of military science in other countries.

A policy, under which films are exchanged with the armies of foreign nations, has been instituted to enable the various arms of the service to study progress and practice abroad and to build up an historical motion picture library.

Saved U. S. $1,885,566

Washington, Nov. 20—The army and navy radio, plus the War Department's leased wire, saved the government $1,885,566 in telegraph tolls during the fiscal year ended last June 30, it was disclosed in the annual report of the Budget Bureau.

Bride on "Dare"

BRITISH MINERS ACCEPT TERMS

London, Nov. 20 (AP)—The national delegate conference of the Miners' Federation, representing all the coal fields in Great Britain, today voted for acceptance of the government's proposals for solution of the coal mining problem at the present session of Parliament.

The proposals call for a reduction in working hours from eight to 7½ a day, beginning April 6; setting up of a national wages board for the industry, establishment of a compulsory marketing scheme for the regulation of output and prices and the gradual acquisition of mineral royalties by the state.

SPENT $1500 TRYING TO GET WELL

Then Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Relief

This startling letter from an ex-service man will interest everyone who suffers from constipation:

"I was discharged after the World War with heart trouble and bad stomach. I had raved about $1500. Since then I've spent that sum and a lot more on doctoring and operations and medicines. I always was bothered with constipation.

"I told my wife to get some kind of light breakfast food and I would try it. She came home with a small package of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I ate it for breakfast, lunch and dinner, about a common tea-saucer full with milk at each meal. I have been doing this for about a month. I have stopped taking dope (medicines). I work 9 to 12 hours. I have a good appetite. And now I am gaining flesh and believe I am getting well."—GEORGE C. O'CONNELL, Barker, N. Y.

Cleanse your system of constipation's poisons. Thousands have regained their old-time vigor and vim, stopped constipation forever, by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Relief is guaranteed. ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. 100% effective—doctors recommend it. Ready-to-serve with milk or cream. Use in cooking. See the recipes on the package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers. Served in leading hotels and restaurants—dining cars.

REVIVES HOPE FOR SAFETY OF EIELSON

Nome, Alaska, Nov. 20 (AP)—A radio report saying that the plane of Carl Ben Eielson, noted Arctic aviator, had been seen flying in the vicinity of North Cape, Siberia, revived hope here today that he soon would be heard from. He has been missing 10 days.

Eielson and Frank Dorbandt, a fellow-pilot, have been moving passengers and furs from the Nanuk, a vessel belonging to the Svenson Fur Co., to the Alaska mainland.

The two planned to rescue the crew of the Stavropol, a Russian ice-breaker, as soon as they completed the Nanuk job. In the initial trip to the Nanuk they brought back six of her passengers and valuable furs.

Detroit, Nov. 20 (AP)—Recalling the fight he made against the Arctic elements in 1927 when forced down while flying out from Point Barrow, Alaska, Carl B. Eielson's friends here are not alarmed for his safety.

When Eielson accompanied Capt. Sir George Hubert Wilkins to fly over the "top of the world" he and his chief were forced down by engine trouble 500 miles out. Eielson, despite a temperature of 40 degrees below zero and four frozen fingers, repaired the motor and got the plane into the air again.

Two more forced landings on the ice were made and finally, when 80 miles from shore, the fuel supply gave out. Wilkins and Eielson made their way afoot, and after much hardship and in the face of heavy storms reached their flying base nearly a fortnight later.

Woman Sues Man to Recover Dog

Catherine T. Moynihan of Boston has brought a bill in equity in the superior court against James T. Malloy of Boston, to recover possession of a Boston bull terrier named "Prince."

The plaintiff alleges that on October 3 Malloy took the dog from her possession and has refused to return it to her—and that he has secreted the dog and refused to allow an officer to replevin the animal.

Demands U.S. Outlaw All Wire Tapping

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Wire tapping would be made illegal and information or evidence obtained by this method would be made inadmissible in civil and criminal trials under a bill Representative Schafer, Republican, Wisconsin, expects to introduce tomorrow.

Schafer said he would call for prompt action on the measure in hope of restoring "the fundamental liberties guaranteed to our people under the Constitution," which, he said, were taken away by a decision of the Supreme Court.

The measure would provide a penalty of from one to 10 years' imprisonment.

The Supreme Court ruled in a celebrated case that evidence obtained by federal officers by tapping telephone wires could validly be introduced as evidence in court actions with no violation of the Constitution.

SINCLAIR EAGER TO GET BACK TO WALL ST.

Washington, Nov. 20—Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil operator, tinkered with the pleats and ecstorts of the District of Columbia jail pharmacy today for the last time.

At midnight tonight he will leave all that behind, his sentences of six and a half months for contempt of court and contempt of the Senate completed. He is expected to go at once to his luxurious Long Island home. He plans to plunge back into his vast Wall Street interests.

Sinclair entered the jail on May 6 to serve terms of three months for refusing to answer questions of the Senate committee investigating the oil scandals and of six months for contempt of the District of Columbia Supreme Court in connection with the shadowing of the jury when he was on trial with Albert B. Fall for conspiracy to defraud the government through the celebrated lease on the Teapot Dome naval oil reserves.

Portions of the two sentences ran concurrently, and with allowances for five days off each month for good behavior, his stay in the jail was reduced to six months and fourteen days.

Drug store experience gained in the early days of Sinclair led to his assignment as jail pharmacist and assistant to the jail physician. A storm of criticism was aroused when it was discovered that his duties took him beyond the walls of the jail and included frequent rides to the Washington waterfront.

Emergency Rent Law Unconstitutional

New York, Nov. 20 (INS)—Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly today was considering the advisability of appealing the decision of the appellate term of the Supreme Court, which found that the city emergency rent law, designed to protect the tenant, was unconstitutional.

The municipal assembly passed a law preventing landlords of apartments which rent for $15 or less a room a month from raising rents unless they could prove the increases were reasonable.

The court held the emergency law interferes with the right of contract between landlord and tenant.

AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS REVEAL NEW FINDINGS AT CONCLAVE

HUNDREDS AT MEETING IN TORONTO

Transportation Executives Say 6-Wheel Bus, Trailer Here to Stay

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20—That both the trailer and six-wheel type of motorcoach and truck have come to stay and that engine, brakes, tires, general chassis and body design, safety measures and regulatory legislation must give full consideration to these facts, was the consensus of opinion expressed by transportation executives concluding their four days meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers at Toronto.

Several hundred prominent motorcoach and truck manufacturers, railway men, fleet operators and automotive designers attended the nine sessions of the week. Two joint conferences with the American Railway Association were held in an attempt to co-ordinate railway and automobile activities.

According to attending engineers, this first International Transportation meeting has brought forth sharply many important scientific findings relating to wheel construction, tires, six-wheel chassis, passenger transport, freight conveyance, the operation of trailers, fuel economy, including some discussions relating to the Diesel engine, as well as much that will assist in operation, maintenance, standardization and legislation.

Engines, brakes and "Doughnut" tires were special subjects of interest. It was predicted that because of the advent of the forty passenger single deck coach, the familiar double decker would ultimately go out. Safety features too were much emphasized. Four of the papers read were duplicates of those prepared for the World's Engineering Congress at Tokio, Japan.

COMMERCIAL CREDIT BOOMS

The number of manufacturing companies which have contracted with the Commercial Credit Company to finance their deferred payment sales has increased to more than 75, according to a revised list just published. This diversified clientele is the result of a program that has been carried out in recent years to make the company less dependent upon the automobile industry.

Figures just released by the Commercial Credit Company show that the volume of installment sales financed during the first nine months of 1929, exclusive of automobile financing, represented an increase of 300 per cent over the corresponding period of 1925.

As an indication of how the company has gradually worked away from its former dependence on the motor industry, the report for the first nine months of 1929 shows that only 43.6 per cent of the total volume of business financed was accounted for by retail purchases of automobiles

Twin Personalities

Doris Hill, leading lady for Paramount, has chosen the powerful new Willys-Knight Great Six Coupe as the car best fitting her personality. Beauty of line and striking color combination in blue and gray appeared to Miss Hill's artistic sense, with the deep cushions "Finger-Tip Control" and other aids to driving meeting her demand for ease and comfort in operation.

Grade Separations Clear Traffic Jam

Something has taken place in the highway world which definitely indicates that the automobile is to be recognized as a 20th century machine.

The Lincoln Park district of Chicago has just adopted a bond issue which will provide for the building of three highway grade separations and a mile extension of two parallel 45-foot pavements on the outer drive to the north. In simple terms, a grade separation is a bridge over another thoroughfare.

This step is in itself a matter-of-fact statement, but to those who realize what that means in terms of lessened automobile congestion and injury and death, it is one of the most important highway actions yet taken.

This constitutes an ambitious undertaking, but the automobile in the city constitutes a gigantic problem, a problem which requires an unlimited amount of nerve to solve. Cities all over the country are facing the same dilemma—as much it can be called, for there is only one thing to be done—attack the ailment as Chicago.

The grade separation has already proved its worth in Chicago, Wayne county, Michigan, and elsewhere. Engineers have made estimates of the time wasted at busy intersections and have calculated that even in assigning a small value to motorists' time grade separations will shortly pay for themselves. Their figures, of course, do not estimate the cost of deaths and injuries and smashed cars.

Hospital on Wheels

Rolling from place to place, wherever it may be needed, the ambulatory clinic developed by Dr. Sven Lokrana, of Los Angeles, Cal., has attained considerable success.

$60,000,000 TO GO FOR 'ALKY'

With winter just around the corner, it is estimated that American motor car owners will use approximately one-third of the entire alcohol output of the United States to guard against the ravages of frozen radiators. This does not include the various other anti-freeze compounds used by water-cooled cars.

An investigation discloses that approximately 20,000,000 gallons of alcohol will be poured into radiators during the winter months. Placing the average cost of alcohol at $1 a gallon reveals that $20,000,000 will be spent by motorists on this one item alone. It is believed that from 25 to 50 per cent of car owners employ other types of anti-freeze mixtures, which would boost the total expenditure to nearly $60,000,000.

MARMON FOLK TO CELEBRATE

The most important event of the year for Marmon-Roosevelt distributors and dealers in the United States and Canada is planned for December 9, 10 and 11, it is announced by Thomas E. Jarrard, Marmon general sales director.

This event will be known as the Marmon Roosevelt Jubilee, being so termed because it will signify not only the close of the most successful year in the company's history, but will mark the beginning of the 79th year of business for the Marmon institution.

The entire Marmon-Roosevelt distributor and dealer body in the United States and Canada, numbering approximately 1,500 different organizations, has been invited to the gathering.

Information already received indicates that it will be the largest meeting, by far, ever held by the Marmon company.

No Buick Part Too Old to Replace

The success of an army in the field depends almost entirely upon the support and service of supply behind the lines. General Pershing emphasized this fact many times during the World War, and the Buick Motor Company, in its battle for a perfect transportation service, has long maintained an army of trained mechanics and vast resources of supply to support the thousands of Buicks that speed over the highways.

Two big units of the vast Buick plant are devoted exclusively to the manufacture, storage and shipping of Buick and Marquette parts. H. B. Noyes, president of Noyes Buick Co. explained today.

There is no such word in the Buick vocabulary as obsolescence. In back of the oldest Buick on the highway—and they date back to 1904—the factory stands ready to replace every part of every automobile it has produced.

Jigs, dies and fixtures of all Buick models are kept by the parts department where they are used from time to time to replenish the stock parts for the older model cars.

The thoroughness of the Buick parts replacement service was demonstrated recently when a farmer in Colorado wrote to the factory for a cylinder crankcase for a model B engine, manufactured in 1904—one of the first Buicks made. The writer said he had junked the car about ten years ago, but had been using the engine ever since to run a buzz saw, corn sheller and other farm machinery. The 1904 crankcase was sent to him promptly, much to his surprise.

Drip Pan Should Be Kept Cleaned

The drip pan under the engine should be kept clean. The absence of old oil and gasoline may prevent a destructive fire should there be a backfire, due to lean mixture of the carburetor

3,000,000,000 BUS TRAVEL

Buses traveling over American highways carry 8,000,000 passengers a day, or 3,000,000,000 a year—24 times the total population of the United States.

Bus passengers pay $300,000,000 a year for transportation.

Common carrier bus lines now operate regularly over 200,000 miles of bus routes, as compared with 250,000 miles of steam railroads and 43,000 miles of electric railways.

These are a few of the highlights brought out by William C. Blake manager of bus and taxicab tire sales of the United States Rubber Company, in addressing a recent convention of United States district sales managers at Detroit. Mr. Blake pointed out that the bus industry, while operating over practically as many miles of routes as trains and electric cars combined, still is in its infancy—less than eight years old—and that it is the country's fastest growing transportation system.

AIR GREETING FOR SANTA PLANNED

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Santa Claus has come to Boston before by means of the airplane, but he has never received a vocal welcome from the sky.

Said vocal greeting will be given by the Curtiss tri-motored Ford if present plans go through. These plans call for an installation of a public address system in the Ford on Friday morning and a test on Friday afternoon.

Provided everything goes well the outfit will be officially set in motion by Houghton & Dutton Saturday morning, when Santa makes his first visit.

When his Pitcairn Mailwing burned up at the airport, Bob Ayling cast envious eyes at the new Pitcairns. His ship was flown down to the factory at Philadelphia by Dick Mackie of Colonial and the order was left to rebuild the ship no matter what it cost.

Bob went down to the factory a couple of days ago and found his ship with a complete new cowl from the rear cockpit back, and also found that his Pitcairn PA-7 was added to a PA-6 and so that the ship could be called a PA-7, without causing anybody an embarrassment.

Hyannis airport, according to Bob, is being enlarged, and by the middle of next summer the airport will have a north and south runway of 4000 feet and an east and west runway of 3500 feet. When all this is accomplished, Ralph Wickford will have no qualms about going into the field with Curtiss Ford, and everybody will be happy.

Skyways, Inc., of the Boston Airport, have very cordially invited the aviation editors of the Boston Airport to attend a luncheon at their Municipal Airport on Cape Cod, tomorrow.

The official photographer of the city of Boston, Eddie Ramsdell went up with his pilot, Gilbert Waller, to 10000 feet only to find a rather thick layer of clouds obscuring his vision and making the maintenance of his picture taking impossible.

Monday of this week, during the Easter, was the only day that an airplane did not take off or land on the Boston Airport in the six years of its existence. This statement is given by Airport Superintendent Albert L. Edson.

PAULINE FREDERICK in "EVIDENCE"

Pauline Frederick's career has been a succession of dramatic triumphs, but never have her emotional powers been given wider range.

Inimitably she portrays a wife—caught in the mesh of circumstantial evidence—scorched by the hot breath of scandal—betrayed by the man who loved her.

Pauline Frederick in "Evidence" is most ably supported by three great leading men, each playing the part of a lover.

Lowell Sherman, the mad, vengeful lover who seeks to destroy that which he cannot possess—William Courtenay, the suspicious, jealous, ardent lover—Conway Tearle, the unselfish, hopeless lover.

Teeming with emotion—vibrant with the fires of strife and mental conflict "Evidence" is a great play made greater by Vitaphone.

What Has Happened

MARY PATRICIA DAWN, beautiful, young brunette, nears the tad of her dreams in the person of Guy Elliott, aviator. Guy is developing a perfect airplane in the plant of old William Bryce. Happy days follow with Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce, young widow of Bryce's son, with her seductive lure. Later Guy receives a visit from Barbara and her young son, upon whom old Bryce squanders a fortune. Tom Burns, a workman, rages about the unfairness of wealth. His invalid son is dying for want of necessities. When Bryce refuses a loan, Burns swears revenge. He robs the office safe and is captured after a gun fight. Preparations are being made for Pat to enter college. Hearing much gossip about the south of today, Mrs. Dawn prays that Pat will remain the sweet girl she is.

CHAPTER 16.

LAURA stood among the delphiniums. They were royal this April, every thrilling blue from the palest azure to the richest indigo. They were behind these against a dark ground of pink roses—whole masses of alarming pink.

For three years Laura had worked for this contrast of lovely color. Now the garden was still lovely—and so apparently a happy promise to the song.

Miss Pat stepped idly down the path.

"Why, mother, if you still know how girls and boys can look standing there! As though you were waiting for your lover."

"Pat," said Laura musing, "do you remember how the garden looked when we came here three years ago?"

"Yes — prim. No dream. No imagination. You've given the place a soul, mother."

Laura listened absently. Many, many nights in the vanished years she and Richard had planned this home. And how far, far distant, often enough, had seemed its realization. Yet more than they asked was now given. She was very happy. This was the 21st anniversary of her marriage.

She turned a smiling face to Pat.

"It's an devil-may-care perched at this angle, mother dear. With an air of suspense as 'twere. You don't know whether it's going off or coming on."

Pat took them with a flush and sat herself down on the swinging couch to read. Every Saturday morning and two or three times during the week came this big square white envelope, postmarked Los Angeles, From Lee. He had finished college in December. Half a dozen times already he had driven up for a visit with Pat.

He was a blond young Apollo and humbly adored the audacious Pat.

With each meeting Pat's liking for him grew—a deep warm affection.

But it had none of the young radiant fervor that was her passion for Guy.

Now, as she slipped the sheets back in the envelope, Laura sat beside her.

"He wants you to marry him, Pat?"

"He would—yes."

"Did you refuse him?"

"Why, mother, do you suppose I am thinking of such banalities as marriage at the tender age of not quite 20. I've three years more, you know"

"But you are thinking of it, of course."

"And you'd rather have me take Lee? Oh, mother, do you mean to tell me that you don't find that the most enchanting thing on the face of the earth? Really, he's quite as thrilling, or more so, than Lee. Why are you against him?"

"They're both very fine young men, of course! But I'm sure I don't see what Guy has that Lee lacks."

"Oh, yes, you do, Mrs. Dawn! Guy has what Richard has—the subtle, mysterious quality—the come-hither, come-hither! And when you're picking a mate for yourself, I notice, you were very careful to land one just crammed full of it."

"Pat, is that any way for a girl to speak of her father?"

"Why, mother dear," tittered Pat, "don't blame me if you married a man so potent that his own daughter can feel his charm."

"Guy," said Laura, in a way she had of pursuing her own thoughts and blandly discounting interruptions, "has such a long, bitter path"

"But he's a great engineer, mother, as well as a thrilling pilot."

"And three years from now," went on the mother, "he may be in exactly the same position as he is now."

Pat shrugged:

"Much has happened in 75 months before! If William Bryce doesn't appreciate him, someone else will. And, mother, just fancy hopping across the ocean on a honeymoon. Or circling the globe!

$10 FLAT RATE WOULD AID INDUSTRY

Assessors Debate Today on New Rate on Personal Property

A proposal to increase [illegible] on stock in trade and [illegible] personal property would be presented as a uniform rate [illegible] to all [illegible] assessors [illegible] Massachusetts Assessors at the [illegible] House.

The proposal submitted by the [illegible] legislative committee through its chairman, James J [illegible] of Cambridge, was the [illegible] pleasure of Chairman [illegible] Henry F. Long at the meeting [illegible]. He declared the law would have the support of every [illegible] and would apply [illegible] many [illegible] other [illegible] bill.

[illegible] sought out the assessors [illegible] the present system [illegible] and the personal property [illegible] the State is now taxed.

It was argued that millions of dollars in property which now escape, would be declared by separating the personal property, which includes farm livestock, mill machinery and store merchandise, as well as household effects, and placing a special low flat rate on it, as has been done on automobiles through the state excise tax.

The proposed legislation would mean that textile machinery and all other industrial machinery would be taxed only about one-third of its present tax. Livestock on farms would be taxed only about one-third as much. Chain stores and other corporations would pay a local tax for the first time, on merchandise.

Household furniture and personal effects would bear the $10 tax, instead of being assessed on the same basis as real estate.

A dramatic incident occurred at the meeting when, after reading their oath of office, Tax Commissioner Long called on the members to rise from their seats provided they had followed the law.

Though the association was generally represented from all parts of the state, none of the members stood up and complete silence prevailed for several minutes.

Prior to his invitation the commissioner had declared that the Beverly assessors alone had made complete assessments and thereby carried out the oaths taken by them on assumption of office.

GLAD 'DADDY' BEAT ROCHE IN PRIMARY

Cleanup of City Planned by Nominee if Elected Mayor in December

"Hi, Daddy; did you win?"

"You bet, sonny."

This talk over the telephone today between Michael J. O'Neil, of Everett, who won first place in yesterday's primary for Mayor, and his four-year-old son, Wilbur, 1½ miles away, in Mobile, Ala., was the most important of the hundreds of telephone conversations Everett's new political figure participated in today.

O'Neil's young son is with relatives in Alabama because of asthma it being impossible for him to live in Everett on account of his ailment.

Four year old Wilbur told his daddy he was glad he had won. Then, the former sub master of Everett High school, who gave up that position to run for Mayor, asked, "How are you, sonny?" and the child replied "I'm fine, daddy."

The telephone call was instituted by the relatives of Mr. O'Neil with whom the child is now staying and the little boy's conversation was only a portion of the talk that took place.

WON BY 2309 VOTES

O'Neil's showing in leading Mayor Roche, the present incumbent, by 2309 votes was the outstanding feature of yesterday's primaries in several Massachusett's cities. O'Neil had never run for political office previously. His election is conceded by leading politicians. He polled 6367 against Roche's 4058.

"I entered the contest for mayor because of the insistence of friends," said Mr. O'Neil, "and yesterday's vote is an indication the people of this city want a change. I hope to win in the city election Dec. 3 and if I do, I will endeavor to bring about a cleaner city. I will endeavor to wipe out this unsightly dumps that travelers see in passing through Everett and I will try to get the manufacturers to remove the impurities that now infest the air of the city."

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

"I will also start a civic employment bureau and urge the employment of local persons in local industries. The manufacturing plants in this city now have a payroll of $8,000,000 annually."

Mr. O'Neil lives in Summer st. with his wife and other son Charles, 9 years of age.

In addition to being a member of the Elks, Mr. O'Neil is active in the legion and fraternal movement.

Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley easily led the candidates in Chelsea. He will be opposed at the election by former Mayor John J. Whalen, who ran second.

Mayor John D. Devir led in Malden, with former Mayor William H. Hastings in second place. In Lawrence Mayor Michael A. Landers was far ahead of Michael Garvey in a field of three.

PARDON LOOMS FOR MOONEY

San Francisco, Nov 20 (INS) A request from Governor C. C. Young to the State Supreme Court to expunge consideration of a petition affecting Warren K. Billings was interpreted today as an indication that an early pardon looms for Tom Mooney and Billings.

The men are serving life terms for participation in the Preparedness Day bombing in 1916. Their pardon has been sought, based on the grounds that they were convicted on framed evidence, since disproved. Recently, also, has come to light the confession of Lewis Smith of Ohio, now dead, that he hurled the bomb.

SHOVEL COAL ON TONIGHT

Greater Boston will probably have its coldest weather of the season tonight when the temperature drops to near 30 degrees, Weather Bureau officials said today.

The official forecast is fair and slightly colder tonight and Thursday with moderate winds, mostly northwest, and a minimum temperature near 30.

Light scattered snow flurries were reported today at Northfield, Vt., and other places in extreme northern New England, and in eastern Canada.

A marked change to cooler is sweeping the country from the Northwest. In many places as far south as Denver, Col., temperatures of 10 degrees below zero are reported.

The lowest temperature in the country this season came from Lander, Wyo., where the thermometer recorded 12 degrees below zero. The lowest temperature in New England was 24 degrees above zero at Greenville, Me.

CONDITIONS AT CAPE RESORTS ASSAILED

Rural High Schools Included in Charges of Immorality, Drink and Drugs

Summer resorts all along Cape Cod as well as night clubs in Boston and vicinity were assailed by Mrs. Wenona Osborne Pinkham, secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League, at a luncheon held by the league in its drive to have a special woman's unit of the State police established.

The charges of immorality, drunkenness and drug distribution and the demand for laws to rectify "openly immoral conditions" in tourists overnight cabins were based upon a report compiled last August by investigators.

The report also contains allegations of immorality at rural high schools, including several located on Cape Cod and assertions that many couples are living together in the Provincetown art colony without benefit of clergy.

Mrs. Pinkham urged a special woman's unit of the State police to curb vice and protect young girls and women in night resorts, overnight camps and roadhouses along the main State highways.

ONSET CONDITIONS SCORED

"I do not say that all overnight camps are to be condemned," Mrs. Pinkham stated, "but our investigators, brought from outside the state last August, found conditions that would be rectified if these overnight camps were regulated. Prices were quoted for parties without question, $5 single, and $7.50 double. There was no registration, no question whether the couples are married. Investigators were also directed to private houses where rooms may be rented."

Mrs. Pinkham stated that the investigators made the rounds of Boston night clubs last August and followed with a general survey of immorality and vice all the way between Boston and Provincetown.

"Onset is one of the places we found things not as they should be, and Provincetown, was another place," Mrs. Pinkham stated. "But bad conditions were found in the exclusive places on the Cape, also in some dance and dine places girls were seen paralyzed by drink.

"Reports of drugs being distributed were gathered by our investigators, also. Roadhouses were found with rooms on the upper floors, available without question in cases of open sale of liquor were found, but it was invariable that setups of ginger ale and cracked ice were served.

TELLS OF GIRLS' FATES

"We found the case of a chief of police in a town between Boston and Provincetown who was the father of an illegitimate child, lost his job and was later restored to duty. In another town we found the case of a constable, charged with law enforcement, who had been convicted of drunken driving, who had a daughter an inmate of Lancaster School. Another daughter was the mother of an illegitimate child. Another constable was taken to court on a charge of being the father of an illegitimate child.

"In a town at the extreme end of the Cape we found the cases of five girls under 17 years old all victims of immoral conditions and about to become mothers. In cases of immorality in rural high schools we learned that the lower grades of the high school were in the same building and that the older children had committed offences against the younger ones.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Tells How He Hacked Wife With Axe

Motor Cycle Officer Simon W. Toulette, with Pellegrino Daddio of Hall st., Medford, who surrendered to the police and admitted that he had struck his wife three times with an axe during a quarrel. Mrs. Daddio is in the Lawrence Hospital. It is believed she will recover. Daddio is held on a charge of assault with intent to kill. (Staff photo.)

MEDFORD WIFE AXED BY MATE

After quarreling with his wife, Pellegrino Daddio, 56, of Hall st., Wellington district of Medford struck her three times with an axe, police are prepared to tell the court today. It is alleged that Daddio surrendered after the deed and made a confession.

The victim, Mrs. Josephine Pellegrino Daddio, 44, suffered three scalp wounds and is in a serious condition at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital but is expected to recover. Daddio is under arrest on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Police found Mrs. Daddio unconscious in a chair. The woman was badly hacked by the axe.

Daddio is alleged to have told the police that he had had several quarrels with his wife, which ended in the axing.

Sergt. William J. McLaughlin and Patrolman Charles Hearty and Officer Touchette inspected the Daddio home, and in the attic found a 100-gallon still and several gallons of mash. They also report finding about 25 tins of liquor which will be taken to police headquarters tomorrow.

Fouhy Fight May Go to Gov. Allen

Found guilty of falsifying official records of his command and recommended for dismissal from the service, Capt. Leo A. Fouhy of the 101st Wagon Company, 26th Division, if necessary will carry his fight for reversal of the court martial finding to Governor Frank G. Allen, it was indicated today.

Fouhy was convicted after a own defense Fouhy claimed he had been told he would be "framed" and convicted.

It was charged that Fouhy made false reports of his company attendance at drills on four different occasions. The trial board reached a decision on Nov. 13 but did not, at that time, announce the verdict.

Major Frederick W. Breen, defense counsel and member of the Governor's military staff, and Lieut. Conrad Richardson, his assistant, announce an appeal immediately after the verdict was made public by Col. Frank Gibbs of the 101st Engineers, president of the board.

Kellaway Named on Planning Board

Herbert J. Kellaway of 41 Chase st., Newton Center, has been appointed by Mayor Edwin O. Childs a member of the Newton planning board to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Alfred E. Urges Child Welfare Work in Small Towns

"One of the most pressing needs in child welfare work is that the rural sections and smaller cities and towns shall find a way to bring up their standards of care for dependent, neglected and delinquent children to match what is being done in the larger cities," said C. C. Carstens, executive director of the Child Welfare League of America.

"Most of this must be done at public expense. New England states have been in the forefront of public service development and can point many lessons to the country as a whole in the care of children who cannot be reared by private agencies."

HARRIMAN RAPS GOODWIN ON TUNNEL PLAN

Says They Were Drawn Up and Decided Upon Three Years Ago

Asserting that the complete Harriman plan for the East Boston tunnel was decided upon three years ago, Henry I. Harriman, former chairman of the metropolitan planning division, scouted the charges of Chairman Frank A. Goodwin of the Finance Commission that professional real estate speculators knew the "inside" of the plans for the location of the $18,000,000 East Boston traffic tunnel months before the Boston transit commission.

Harriman declared that he still retains in his desk the plans and sketches of the tunnel which were shown to the members of the Legislature, and protested that the members of the metropolitan board of which he was head knew nothing about alleged land deals in connection with the property which will have to be purchased by the city near Haymarket sq. and in East Boston to make way for the tunnel terminals and approaches.

Harriman insisted that the State board made the tunnel survey in a purely abstract way, with the viewpoint toward providing a connection under the harbor between East Boston and the downtown section which would best meet the traffic needs of the future and establishing a traffic artery that would pay its own way.

Harriman agreed with Mayor Nichols that the Harriman plan was superior to the plan proposed by the Boston transit commission, although he held a high personal and professional regard for Chairman Thomas F. Sullivan of the transit commission and Chief Engineer Ernest R. Springer of the transit department.

He agreed with his critic, Chairman Goodwin of the Finance Commission, in that the tunnel plans should be given the widest publicity for the ultimate benefit of the community, and offered in a few days to release a public statement, comparing the various tunnel plans.

ROADHOUSE TRAPS ENSNARE YOUNG GIRLS FOR CRIME MART

'SLAVERS' USE LOOPHOLE IN LAW

Search for Thrills Often Places Innocent in Power of Vice Agents

The Boston Evening American today publishes the fourth installment of a series on the dangers to schoolboys and girls in Boston.

Possibly the worst menace confronting the youth of the land today, is the cheap roadhouse.

Located as it frequently is some distance from a city off the main road its flashy pretensions to gayety and glaring illumination are frequently a blind for more tawdry not to say sordid activities.

With the high class type of roadhouse, which purveys only good food and music or other form of entertainment, this article has nothing to do.

Official investigation of the Samuel Reinstein murder, however, has revealed that cheap roadhouses at their best are places where underworld characters make merry; and at their worst are dens of iniquity.

In Massachusetts the State constabulary sternly enforce the laws regarding roadhouses, and make praiseworthy efforts to maintain supervision over all such places in the State.

The trouble lies in the fact that the laws as at present written are not comprehensive enough and can be circumvented easily by unscrupulous proprietors and managers.

One of the greatest dangers to an innocent girl in such a place is the fact that, after being plied with liquor, she can be induced to spend the night in a room on the premises.

Experts agree that roadhouses should not be permitted to rent rooms, but the drafters of the law believed they had established a safeguard when they provided that a register must be kept.

As it happened this provision in itself furnishes a most convenient loophole, for it requires a register only when more than five rooms are rented.

SLAVE AGENTS ACTIVE

Under the circumstances a roadhouse with only five rooms is exempt from police supervision, although the State troopers make a practice of dropping into such places at intervals, seeking liquor law violations.

A roadhouse may have more than five rooms, although not renting them all officially. However, in case the five are taken, it is usually possible to obtain a room for the night with or without the formality of baggage, and the authorities are none the wiser.

This type of roadhouse, investigation has revealed, is a favorite with the white slave cadet, who usually has an agreement with the proprietor or manager.

Here he takes a girl he has marked down as his prey, having met her under the guise of a broker's clerk, or representative of any other line of legitimate business.

Perhaps it is the night of a big game, or a holiday, and his story to the girl is that the better class of roadhouses are filled, as tables were reserved some time in advance.

The intended victim, anxious for gayety and entertainment, readily agrees, and the pair depart by automobile to one of the places where the cadet is known.

Food, dancing and liquor are provided in plenty, and by the time the evening is over the girl has become helplessly intoxicated and unable to go home. Sometimes sell liquor and in others it can be obtained from employes.

FALL INTO TRAP

Her escort leads her to a room, and the first step in her downfall has been accomplished. In the morning when the girl hysterically demands that she be taken home, her "friend" calmly points out to her how she may benefit financially by her situation.

Some girls insist on leaving and are forcibly detained. Others are permitted to go on their promise to meet the cadet later. Still more, ashamed by their plight and their spirit broken, fall in with the cadet's plan and agree to be guided by him

The next step is to install the unfortunate girl in a disorderly house, usually part of the white slave circuit stretching from Pennsylvania to Boston, the existence of which was revealed by the federal authorities.

The girl is moved from city to city on a schedule prepared by the cadet, who makes contacts with the proper people in each place, and completes all arrangements.

A stop of from 10 to 15 weeks is made in each of at least five cities on the circuit, which originates in the heart of the Pennsylvania steel country, Bethlehem, Allentown and Easton. In that district many of the units on the circuit are cheap roadhouses, 15 or 20 miles out of town off the main highways.

They are tremendous sources of revenue for the men and women who control them, and, according of U S Attorney Frederick H. Tarr, at least 50 murders have been committed in protecting this huge income.

The Pennsylvania roadhouses are gawdy, tinsel-decorated places, with but little pretension to serving food. Drinks are always obtainable. They are conducted loosely, with practically no supervision, and as a rule bear striking names, such as the "Fire Line Inn," for example.

ANOTHER GIRL LOST

In one of these roadhouses another girl also involved in the Reinstein slaying, started her career a few years ago at the age of 17. At that time she was a schoolgirl, member of a good family, with intelligent parents, and was planning to become a stenographer. Her home life was happy and she had everything to look forward to.

Eleanor, to use a name which is not hers, was pretty, beautifully formed, an accomplished dancer and very popular with her school-mates. Her only defect was a violent temper, which left her mother, on occasions to predict it would get her into trouble.

On a cold Saturday in the late fall, Eleanor attended a football game with a young student, who packed a flask. During the game the young couple had several drinks, and afterwards, in his roadster, while tied up in traffic, took more.

The drinks warmed Eleanor, loosened her tongue, and made her crave excitement. A suggestion from the student that they go to a roadhouse was readily agreed to although the girl had never been in such a place.

On arrival they had many more drinks, with food and dancing sandwiched in. By midnight Eleanor did not know her own name and was incapable of resisting the advances of her escort.

In the morning when realization of her situation was borne upon her, the girl's temper flared up and she vowed to make men pay for the wrong which had been done her. Reaction followed, and she became despondent.

MEETS CADET

She went home with a trumped up story to account for her absence, and succeeded in allaying the anxiety of her family. Her despondency continued, and she was drawn again and again to the roadhouse. Here she met a cadet who had marked her down as his prey. He was young, good-looking, a free spender, and bore no outward sign of the contemptible profession which he followed.

Waits 10 Days in Vain On 11th Nabs Thief

For 10 long and lonely days Patrolman James Connors of the Weymouth police held vigil in the home of the Misses Katherine and Susan Tracy in Keith st., Weymouth Landing, and for 10 days the net result was zero

But the eleventh brought reward for the policeman's patience and perseverance, for he "got his man," rather boy, a 14-year-old, who was working a little breaking and entering stunt all of his own.

The breaks have been reported

He was good to Eleanor, sympathizing with her in small troubles, cheering her up when she was low-spirited and entertaining her lavishly. Eleanor fell in love with him and at length confessed what had happened to her.

The girl found that her new friend had a different slant on the situation than would be held by any of the people with whom she had always associated. He was inclined to minimize the matter, treating it as an accident, which should have but little importance in her life.

In time, after Eleanor had fallen completely under his sway, he revealed his real business, and introduced her to the white slave circuit, exacting obedience to his commands by threatening to inform her parents.

Unwilling that her family should be shamed, and lacking sufficient knowledge of life to know how to escape him, Eleanor agreed to his demands and became a white slave

For three years she worked up and down the circuit, moving from city to city and from house to house, always at the man's command.

She became coarsened and her sensibilities blunted, while the bloom of youth which had made her so desirable to the cadet began to fade. Bitterly disillusioned, the girl nevertheless refused to become a drug addict, and continued to cling to her sweetheart, hopeful he would eventually marry her and take her out of the "racket."

In this way she went on until the crash of bullets which killed "Sammy" Reinstein reverberated through the underworld and the authorities put a period to her activities

WIFE'S RAID ON HUSBAND WINS DIVORCE

Charges Galway Was Trapped With Other Woman Clad in Nightgown

Testimony concerning a raid on a house in Yarmouth sants as allegedly trapped her husband and another woman scantily clad, won a divorce in Suffolk Probate Court for Mrs. Alice Deveau Galway, of 1284 Beacon st., from John Galway, chief operator of the fire alarm branch of the Boston fire department

Counsel for Galway countered his wife's accusations with the charge that she sold their 4 acre on Bellevue st, West Roxbury, after refused to share the $10,000 she received from the sale.

The house, Galway said, had been purchased in 1910 with the joint funds of Galway and his wife.

The raid, it was testified, took place on August 23 last, at six o'clock in the morning. Mrs Galway was accompanied by a private detective. They first went into a room where there was a bed which apparently had not been used, it was testified.

Galway's golf stockings, however were found on the floor In an adjoining room the raiding party found the husband and a woman Mrs Galway said, the former clad in pajamas and the latter in a pink nightgown

There was another bed in this room, it was said, which apparently had been occupied

Mrs Galway is in the employ of the Women's City Club, it was stated in court, from which she receives a salary of $2500 a year. She also charged her husband with cruel and abusive treatment.

COP ARRESTED IN RAID MUST FACE BOARD

Accused of Leaving City Without Permission and Making False Report

As a result of his arrest and arraignment in Gloucester District Court about a week ago, following a raid on a house in Magnolia, Patrolman William F Delaney, Jr. of Dudley st station, has been ordered by Police Commissioner Herbert A Wilson to appear before a police trial board tomorrow morning.

He faces charges of leaving Boston without permission, and making a false report to his superiors Both offenses are alleged to have been committed the night he was arrested in company with Mrs Elwood Eagles of Magnolia

According to police officials in Boston he did not have permission to leave Boston that night After it had been taken into custody at Magnolia he realized he would be unable to go on duty at the Dudley st station and called Lieut. William Carey on the telephone to say he would not be able to report. He explained his inability to report by saying that his wife was ill, police officials allege.

Yale Will Direct Attack on Crimson Tackles Saturday

ELI VICTORY NOT CERTAIN, SAYS GILROY

By RALPH GILROY
Former Princeton Star and All-America Halfback

MULLING over the relative merits of these Harvard and Yale rivals and trying to dope out the most probable winner of this coming football classic is a very confusing task

When the final whistle of the Princeton-Yale battle had blown, and you had seen a thirty-minute display of hard, rugged offensive power put on by the big Blue eleven, you could see nothing else to this coming scrap at the Stadium but a Yale victory

But when you got further removed from the scene of this Yale-Princeton battle and consider in retrospect the events of that duel, you begin to wonder whether Yale was actually as powerful as she looked in that second half or whether Princeton was a weak sister in that second half.

NO ONE can doubt that the Yale forwards from end to end make up a powerful unit. They charge hard, interfere hard, and tackle hard. This Yale rushline is huge in size and fast. The reserve line strength seemed about as good as the regulars who started the game.

And yet this big, aggressive Blue forward wall couldn't seem to get very far in that first half against the Tigers. Bill Roper's forwards bottled up every Yale thrust between the tackles. Whatever yardage the Eli's ground out was made around the Tiger wings, which have been noticeably weak all year.

The first few minutes of the third period found a weakness in the Tiger left tackle position, and Yale hit this weakness consistently until she made a score. Even then, if either of the two men Roper sent in to fill this tackle weakness had been able to plug it up, Princeton might still have had a chance to figure in the game. Capt. Whyte was the Tigers' left tackle through whose position the first Yale touchdown was made.

The Yale offense hammered him all through the first half, and no doubt weakened him. When this third period offense hit Whyte he caved in fast. That must have hurt the Princeton morale.

THAT brings to mind the fact that Captain Barrett plays the same left tackle position for the Crimson and Yale might conceivably play the same strategy on Harvard. It behooves Captain Barrett of the Crimson forces to get ready to play the best game of his career for the effect it should have on the Harvard players.

Captain Whyte of the Tigers had weak ends to support him, and inasmuch as the Yale off tackle smash usually runs outside tackle instead of inside, Tiger tackle should have been helping Whyte on these plays.

Captain Barrett of the Crimson will be more fortunate having a couple of god ends in Harding and Douglas to assist him in smashing up this strong Yale interference which goes ahead of the runner off tackle. And Barrett will have to look for him one of the very best backers up of a rush line in Ben Ticknor

IT IS not much of a secret that the Crimson tackles have been the most vulnerable spot on the Harvard line. It will probably be no secret Saturday to see Mal Stevens directing his Blue offensive at these same Harvard tackles.

Perhaps the Harvard ends and Ben Ticknor will succeed in stopping this Yale offense. Levine, the Tiger full back did a sweet job in backing up the Princeton line during the first half but was injured during the third period and had to leave the game.

While Levine was in there against Yale the Stevens offense didn't do so much rolling. There is no doubt that a good defensive fullback can make a rushline look strong. Ben Ticknor is even better than Levine at backing up a line, and Ben's defensive prowess may be just the right need to slow up this Yale off tackle drive.

DEFENSIVELY the Yale rushline was powerful against the Princeton offense. Wittmer, the Tiger backfield "ace," got a few first downs through it in the middle of the field, but once scoring territory was reached the Yale forwards wouldn't budge.

True, the Tiger offense was very elemental and carried no deception, but the two or three strong Yale stands in the goal line region gave the impression that Harvard will have to develop some real scoring plays in order to cross the Blue goal line.

FLATLEY SAYS

THE young men who ramble about these days betting 2 to 1 that Yale will scalp Harvard are letting enthusiasm run away with their judgment. They have, to be somewhat brusque, more money than brains.

Yale should beat Harvard, if the records of the season mean anything. But they don't. Scores and past results should be filed with the burned out electric bulbs. A touch of luck or a dash of flaming spirit can settle the verdict before this game is one period old.

The Bulldog should be a favorite, but never a 2 to 1 shot. There's no such thing, really, when teams like these meet.

Harvard has displayed uncanny ability with the forward pass all year. Harvard tied with Army and lost to Michigan by not cutting loose soon enough. Harvard will start shooting against Yale early and often.

For the Crimson will hardly do any running through Yale's great line, or around Yale's brilliant ends. The No Passing sign is up all along that frontier. Last fall Harvard lateraled the Eli to death. That weapon will be present again, plus a forward game that few other teams have even approached.

ALBIE BOOTH is a cool, calm and collected field general, but he will meet his match in Barry Wood, the Harvard sophomore. These two youths pack more poise than a couple of Tremont st. traffic cops.

THE issue will be strictly up to the Harvard line. If the Crimson forwards can break through and pile up the hostile assault, before some of the year's fastest interference gets rolling, Harry W. will have chances to go places with his aerial attack. If McLennan and Booth get rolling back of the same screen that Princeton discovered, it will be Harvard, Good Night, as the Yale boys sing.

The Blue foray can be stopped Dartmouth proved that, and the Tiger team had none the worse of a tough battle until exhaustion overcame the regulars and there were no real replacements.

Both Harvard and Yale have enormous reserve strength, and the battling will be grim right down to the finish. If the Harvard linesmen and ends are not outsmarted and overpowered the Crimson has a real chance for Heaven can toss out a flock of carriers as good as they come, just as good collectively, as Albie and the now famous third string quarterback, M. McLennan.

Ralph Gilroy will be announcing Saturday, so the radio will hear our disappointed ticker hounds a real picture of the game. Hope our personal public believes this, if he happens to read it.

SET FOR BATTLE WITH BLUE IN STADIUM

BRUNDAGE IS RE-ELECTED

St. Louis, Nov. 20 (AP)—Re-election of President Avery Brundage of Chicago and other officers, awarding of the 1930 convention to Washington, D. C., and final awards of tournaments, marked the close yesterday of the National Amateur Athletic Union convention.

Daniel J. Ferris, New York, re-elected secretary-treasurer, was voted a salary increase of from $5000 to $6000 a year, and J. Lyman Bingham of Denver, Colo., was appointed as an assistant to the president for a period of three years at an annual salary of $7500. Bingham will make his headquarters in Chicago and will do field service work for the governing body throughout the country.

Many Entries for St. Joe's 'Pure' Show

With entries from all parts of Massachusetts pouring in, another great amateur show will be presented by St. Joseph's T. A. B. in Mechanics Building Saturday night.

3 HUB SCHOOL GAMES TODAY

Three Boston high school grid games are on today. Trade school meets Memorial at Braves Field, at 1 o'clock. The early start is made necessary by the Charlestown and Brighton high game, which is played at the Wigwam at 2:30 today.

The other game of the day, between Boston Latin and Mechanic Arts high school, is played at Brookline Field today at 2:30.

Charley Fitzgerald of Latin has his lads primed for this tilt. The game has twice been postponed, and the extra wait has given the coaches an opportunity to drill their charges on new plays and formations.

Capt. Connell, Mechanic Arts high center, is as good a pivot man as has been in action this year in the Hub school ranks. Hilli, right end, and Griffen and Friberg in the Artisan backfield, are fine footballers.

Lichenstein and Rabinovits are the stars of the Latin backfield. Either of these boys are apt to break away today and ruin the chances of the Mechanic Arts team.

Hub Promoters Might Look This Fighter Up

Loss of Tutton Hard Blow to B. U. Offense

ERNIE TUTTON, star end and forward pass receiver of the Terriers, has a slim chance of playing in the Boston College game Saturday.

Tutton received a kick in the back in the recent Geneva contest which bothered him little at the time, and did not force him out of the game, but since that time, this injury has become worse and shows no signs of immediate improvement.

With Tutton on the sidelines, B U.'s offense will be weakened considerably, as he plays an important part in the Terrier aerial attack. The lanky Medford boy has scored five touchdowns this fall, which is quite a record for an end, and especially on a team that is not a high scoring outfit.

Hilarey Mahaney, Terrier line coach, must now solve the problem of replacing Tutton. Mahaney has been a great success in developing ends since his first appearances on the B. U. coaching staff, and he is being counted on to come through with the finished product once more.

Jack McCarthy and Sam Goldman will fight it out for the other wing post now, and Mahaney will spend lots of time with these two boys between now and Saturday, in order to have them master his full bag of tricks to spring on the Eagles.

TIGERS TO GET CUP SATURDAY

The Henri Fontaine cup, emblematic of the championship of the Canadian-American Hockey League, will be officially presented to the Boston Tigers by Judge James E Dooley, president of the league, on the occasion of the Tigers' opening game with Rhode Island Reds in the Boston Garden Saturday night.

Manager Sheldon H. Fairbanks of the Garden has arranged an elaborate program for the opening night. Invitations have been sent to Governor Allen, Mayor Nichols and Mayor-elect Curley and other city officials of Greater Boston.

The Stetson Radio Band, which played the Bruins through the Stanley cup last season, has been engaged for the occasion, and Miss Maribel Vinson of Winchester, national figure skating champion, has agreed to appear in an exhibition.

All B. U. Has to Do Now to Beat B. C. Is to Win Game

A football game between Boston College and Boston University is associated with the mangling of the lamb by the lion, in the minds of folks who have followed the gridiron fortunes of the two institutions in recent years, yet Coach Reggie Brown of Boston University, far from conceding Saturday's game to the Eagles, is even optimistic about the outcome.

"If our players," Brown is reported to have said, "do what we tell them to do against Boston College, Saturday, they will win the game. I saw B. C. play against Villanova and I haven't paid any further attention to the team.

"Right now we have theoretically stopped all the plays possible from B. C.'s three offensive formations. If our men follow instructions, they ought to win the game."

HARVARD PUNTERS, WOOD AND HUGULEY, GIVE TEAM EDGE IN YALE GAME

WITH three days of polishing ahead of them before they battle their traditional rivals from New Haven, the Harvard team went back to work in the Stadium today.

Much refreshed by the brief rest allowed them by Coach Horween yesterday, the Cantabs got down to business today. Apparently the team realises that only by concentrated effort during the remaining time can they hope to enter the classic battle on even terms with Yale.

The Crimson punters, Wood and Huguley, will receive particular attention from the kicking coach, Vic Kennard, because as time goes on it becomes more and more important that Harvard's ability to boot out of danger is going to be a deciding factor of the game.

Harvard is lucky in having two fine punters in Wood and Huguey. Both can toe spirals up to the 50-yard mark, and at the same time can be counted upon to get the ball away in fast time.

YALE LACKS PUNTERS

Yale's chief weakness this season has been the lack of a really outstanding punter. It is true that the Eli star, Albie Booth has been showing well as a kicker for Yale, but when Booth goes to the sidelines, Yale's kicking threat goes with him

When the Elis took the Tiger for a ride a week ago, the Eli boots were something sad to behold. Most of the punts were slow getting away, and sailed low over the center of the line.

Many were dangerously close to being blocked, and at no time did the Yale punter receive anything like adequate protection from the other backs.

The Yale ends were also inclined to be slow about getting down under punts, and several times the Tiger safely covered 15 to 20 yards before the Yale tackles and ends got him.

Although Harvard has its difficulties in the other departments of the game, the booting of the Cantabs has been comparatively flawless this year. Even when Wood elects a quick kick play, he has been well protected by his line and team mates in the Cantab backfield.

HARVARD ENDS GOOD

At the same time the work of O'Connell, Douglas and Harding the outstanding wing men for Harvard, has been the subject of a lot of authoritative praise this season. Harding especially has acquired considerable reputation of a fast moving end who gets his man in his tracks

More than once before a great Yale team has invaded the Stadium strongly favored to win, and then has been deprived of victory by Harvard's fine booting. What the Crimson hopes this year is that Wood and Huguley can rise to the heights which Hammond, Gherke and others have done before them.

Horween hopes in the few days which remain to instill into Harvard what is popularly known as the goal line punch, an item of great importance to the Cantabs. The lack of this ability to drive through in the crucial moments has already cost Harvard a win over Army and Michigan, and may well prove to be their downfall against Yale

BOTH LACK DROP-KICKERS

But what applies to Michigan and Cagle's cohorts can scarcely apply to Yale, because Booth goes according to Hoyle when the ancient rivals fight it out before 60,000 human people on Saturday.

Harvard and Yale are alike in one respect in that neither art of drop kicking over the crossbars for the extra point is apparently lost on both of them. Harvard has a trio of potential drop-kickers in Gilligan, Wood and Putnam, and even Barry Devens has more than an inkling of the trick, but none have been able to come through lately.

BOOTH WILL BE READY TO PLAY

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 20 (AP)—The Yale varsity will have two more workouts before it leaves for Cambridge Friday, where it will meet Harvard in the final game of the season the following day. Both of them are expected to be long, serious practices, but will not involve scrimmage.

Head Coach Mel Stevens is concerned over the condition of Albie Booth, who has been on the injured list for more than a week with a leg muscle ailment. He has not been able to rid himself of it, and yesterday went through only two or three plays in street clothes before retiring to the infirmary for further treatment.

Practice on new plays and perfection of a defense against Harvard maneuvers are on the program for today's practice. Coach Bill Webster has made a careful note of the Horween offensive and is tutoring the scrubs for work against the Yale regulars.

Bucknell Students Request Goal Posts

New York, Nov. 20 (INS)—Bucknell, alma mater of Christy Mathewson, one of the greatest pitchers of all time, wants the goal posts in the polo grounds, where Matty pitched the Giants to hundreds of victories.

The Polo Grounds officials have received a request from Bucknell asking permission to uproot and take back to Lewisburg, Pa., the goal posts in the event their eleven defeats Fordham here Saturday.

Sonnenberg Ready to Defend Crown Against McGill

TITLE BOUT TOMORROW AT ARENA

GUS SONNENBERG, heavyweight champion of the wrestling world, is back in Boston from the coast, and tomorrow night, he will defend his title against Pat McGill, smiling Irishman from Wakefield, in a two-falls-out-of-three battle at the Arena.

It will be Sonnenberg's first appearance in a local ring since early last July, when he defeated Ed "Strangler" Lewis at Braves Field Last year, in his matches in Boston alone, Sonnenberg drew more than $200,000, and judging by the advance sale of tickets, he will draw another capacity crowd tomorrow night.

Gus skipped to Worcester last night, to fill a date that Worcester promoters have been seeking for many months. He seemed in great condition as he stepped off the train at the South Station. He still weighs 205 pounds, and still seems to carry the dynamite that made him the most discussed figure in the history of the wrestling sport.

PICK REFEREE TODAY

It was announced yesterday that Promoter Paul Bowser had agreed to McGill's demand that Leon Burbank should not referee the match. Representatives of McGill and Sonnenberg will meet with Bowser today and decide upon the referee for the match.

McGill is confident that the title will change hands, but Herr Sonnenberg will rule a 10 to 7 favorite to beat him. McGill is the most finished wrestler, with a greater variety of holds and more experience, but Sonnenberg happens to have a flying tackle that has raised havoc with every wrestler in the world and is expected to give McGill some trouble during the course of the evening.

McGILL OUTWEIGHS GUS

McGill will finish his training at Toland's Gym this afternoon by working out with Al Thomas and Ed George. He will outweigh Sonnenberg by 10 pounds, and will also have advantages of height and reach.

His favorite hold is the aeroplane whirl, one of the most spectacular holds in the game, and the battle between the whirl and the flying tackle should be something to write home about.

Joe Malcewicz, the Utica panther and former A. E. F. champion, will make his first local appearance of the year in the semi-final match against Joe DeVito of Providence.

Malcewicz and DeVito are two of the outstanding wrestlers in the game, and they should stage a fitting semi-final to the championship battle.

Bruce Caldwell Signs Up With Pro Team

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 20 (AP)—Bruce Caldwell, former Yale football star, has signed to play at a halfback position for the Williams A. C., a local professional football team. Caldwell will play his first game next Sunday, when the Williams meet the Newark, N. J., pros.

Dorchester Fans Desire Title Game

The fans of Ashmont, Fields Corner and Meeting House Hill are anxious to hear whether the proposed game between the Millstreams and St. Ambrose Club to take place Thanksgiving morning at Town Field for the championship of Dorchester has been agreed upon.

GOOD GOLF

BY CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

The phrase, hitting from the inside out, has long been used, but in practice, I often notice, it gets the player into the habit of reaching his body out after the ball that is to say, he easily falls into the habit of overdoing it. A better grasp of the principle can be had this way: Have in mind that you will throw the club away, yet hang on to it. It is surprising how effectively this will promote hitting from the inside out. And in "throwing your club away" pick out a place a considerable distance away to which you would throw it if you actually threw it away. The farther away this spot is the more freely and easily you will swing because obviously to throw the club so far you would have to give it quite a toss. This rule works because throwing any object will be natural with you, whereas the golf club swing is a sort of an unnatural action—at least we manage to make it so.

MR. BOSTON
by JACK CONWAY

KAYO CHRISTNER popped into the sporting department to mitt Mr. Boston.

"How about Maloney?" asked Mr. Boston.

"The old right duke will take care of him Friday night at the Garden," replied the Kayo person. "I told you I'd lick Ernie Schaff and I clicked. Now I'm tipping you that I'll stop Maloney."

Don't forget that Maloney has won 16 straight bouts in Boston," advised Mr. Boston.

"Knute Hansen sure ain't in the midst of a winning streak when I rested my right mitt on his chin," replied Christener. "And you know that I chilled the Melancholy Dane. I guess I can do anything in the ring that Johnny Risko can accomplish. And he stopped Maloney."

"Don't give too much weight to the Risko mill," said Mr. Boston. "This match was staged in Cleveland. Funny thing about Maloney is the fact he does not show at his best in out-of-town rings. He has some sort of a mental complex which causes him to show up poorly when battling outside of Boston.

"It is a different story when Jim is showing before the home gang. He's then a wow. His run of 16 victories proves this to be a fact.

"If you were fighting Maloney in Cleveland or New York, I would bet the family jewels that you would win. But as the bout is in Boston, it isn't a cinch that you will grab the blue ribbons. With the gang from South Boston crowded around the ring, Maloney is a regular lion and will give you plenty of trouble."

Jack Conway

A FEW minutes more of fight chatter and Christner was on his way.

"There's a fine fellow," Mr. Boston told the gang in the Sporting Department. "Kayo is 36 years old. He has only been in the pro boxing game for two years. Before that he was a football and soccer player. He entered the boxing game late in life to gain a few luxuries for his wife and three youngsters.

"Christner has fought Sharkey, Paulino, Hansen, Von Porat, Schaaf and other first class heavyweights this year. And he has always given a fine account of himself.

"THE background of the king of the Akron tire pits is similar to that of Babe Ruth, Joe Dundee and Al Jolson. All of these characters got their start at the St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore.

"Now that he is in the big money, Christner still has a warm spot in his heart for youngsters. Today he was to visit the Working Boys' Home in Newton. Fifty boys from that school will be at the ringside when Kayo breezes into action tomorrow night. They will be rooting for their idol to win.

"I LOOK for quite a quarrel when Maloney and Christner start letting their punches fly. For Christner the bout presents opportunity to take a step forward in the heavyweight scramble, while for Maloney the match is a turning point in his career. If Shamus loses, he will be just a heavyweight, while if he wins he must once more be taken seriously by the front runners.

"EDDIE MACK of the Garden tells me that there is intense interest in the bout and that a capacity crowd will be on hand when the big fellows start letting their punches fly. Heavyweights always did have a firm hold on the fans."

RANGER GOALIE MAKES GREAT SAVE

Eddie Shore, the dynamo of the Bruins' attack, has just been robbed of a goal by John Ross Roach. Shore raced the length of the ice, outskating his mates to such an extent that he was alone in the attacking zone with five Rangers. He dodged right in on Roach and let fly a shot to the open end of the net, but the midget New York goalie by a sensational save nullified the Bruins' rush. Queeneville is seen recovering the rebound, while Bourgeault, Johnson and Goldsworthy are wondering how Eddie beat them and wound up behind the nets.

BRUINS DOWN RANGERS, 3-2

Boston's Bruins were leading the American group of the National Hockey League today as a result of three wins in as many starts.

Playing in mid-season form the heavy, fast Boston outfit last night won their third straight game when they defeated the New York Rangers, 3 to 2.

Trailing by a goal when the third period opened, the Bruins swung into the attack, battered down the Rangers' defense, and slipped through two scores for a win.

Boucher and Bun Cook did the Rangers scoring, while Gainor with two goals, and Clapper were the Bruin sharpshooters.

N. Y. Americans Trounced by Chicago Black Hawks

New York, Nov. 20 (INS) New York hockey fans today have yet to see one of their teams win a game this season. The Rangers opened their home stay with a tie and last night the Americans were soundly trounced, 5 to 1, by the Chicago Black Hawks.

Outskated and outsmarted from the start, the Americans seldom threatened. When they did the goal-tending of Gardiner was too much for them. Only a brilliant dash down the ice coupled with a [illegible] of the puck on the [illegible] once Mussoney [illegible] when the game had but [illegible] minutes to go, prevented the Americans from being blanked.

Pirates Prove Irresistible in Scoring 10 Goals

Pittsburgh, Nov. 20 (INS)—Pittsburgh hockey fans, accustomed to a weak-scoring team, were amazed and delighted today at the work of the local Pirates last night when they ran wild to whip Toronto, 10 to 5.

Rallying after the Maple Leafs had registered two goals in the first 5 minute and a half of the opening period, the Pirates tallied six times in the second period.

Maroons Prove Superior to the Canadian Sextet

Montreal, Nov. 20 (INS)—The Montreal Maroons today stacked up as one of the strongest outfits in the National Hockey League as a result of their sensational 5 to 1 victory last night over the flashy Canadiens at the Forum.

While a large and enthusiastic crowd looked on, the heavy Maroons outskated and outplayed their opponents in all of the periods.

Inter-City Bouts on Dec. 9

Amateur ring champions of five cities will participate in the first inter-city boxing tournament of the season to be conducted by the New England Association of the A. A. U at the Boston Arena, Monday night, December 9, it was announced yesterday.

The competing cities will include Toronto, Montreal, Grand Rapids New York and Boston and bouts will be staged in all eight championship classes.

There will be four bouts in each class in this tournament and there will be two Boston boxers in each division which will provide 2 bouts.

There will be 32 boxers in the tournament and as each will be recognized as a title contender in his own city, it is expected that the tournament will prove one of the most successful ever held here.

It is expected that the Boston team for this tournament will be selected early next week. The boxing committee has been anxiously watching the work of various amateurs at local tournaments and only top-notchers will be picked to represent the hub.

Bertazzolo Trains for Big Matches

Riccardo Bertazzolo Italian heavyweight champion, is training seriously at the Sharon Gardens training camp for several lucrative matches which his manager, Phil Buccola, has in view for him.

HAKOAHS TO PLAY HERE SATURDAY

HAKOAH ALL-STARS, the famous Jewish combination which captured the national cup last season, makes its first Hub appearance Saturday in opposing the newly formed Boston pro soccer team in an Atlantic Coast League game at Brookline Field.

The Hubites have been favored with three home games in the next two weeks by the schedule committee. Following the Hakoah game, Providence will provide the opposition here on Thanksgiving Day, and on Saturday, November 30, the New York Giants will be the attraction at Brookline Field.

The schedule is as follows: Saturday, Nov. 23, Boston vs. Hakoah All Stars, Pawtucket vs. Nationals, Giants vs. Brooklyn, Bethlehem vs. Fall River; Sunday, Nov. 24, Giants vs. Fall River, Brooklyn vs. Bethlehem, Providence vs. Nationals, New Bedford vs. Hakoah All Stars; Thanksgiving Day, Boston vs. Providence, Pawtucket vs. Fall River, New Bedford vs. Bethlehem, Nationals vs. Giants, Brooklyn vs. Hakoah All Stars.

DeMar and Henigan in 10-Mile Contest

Among the prominent entries received for the N. E. A. A. U. 10-mile championship to be run at Watertown Saturday, are Jimmy Henigan and Clarence De Mar. In addition, Holmy, New England six-mile champion; Zeep, junior 10-mile champion.

Camel has the quality that smokers depend upon

It is all right to experiment but a pity to spend too much time experimenting when you might be enjoying the fragrant pleasure of smoking Camels.

It has been the experience of many smokers, after trying other brands, that Camels give constant and unfailing pleasure. Their mildness, due to choice tobaccos and expert blending, makes it possible to smoke them liberally without any tiring of the taste. This quality, which smokers have learned to depend upon, will be maintained, because Camels are made for those who know and appreciate the real pleasure of smoking.

Salem High Has One of Best Elevens in the State

TEAM HAS NOT BEEN BEATEN

SALEM HIGH SCHOOL, with its four nations backfield, is working hard this week for its tilt at Newburyport on Saturday.

The objective game of Bill Broderick's eleven, however is the fray with Beverly, at that high school's home field, on Thanksgiving Day.

The undefeated Salem team has rolled through all local opposition this year, and it crushed Mt. Vernon high of New York on the only out-of-state trip of the Salem squad.

Salem has a very good line and a very good backfield. The notable point of the Salem quartet is the fact that it is made up of young men representing four, or, counting the principal sub back, five different nationalities.

Norman Rand, halfback, is the only "Yankee" of the backfield. Bill L'Italien, husky fullback, is of French descent. Halfback Heffernan's forbears dwelt in Ireland, and Frank Rybicki, little quarterback of the team, is of Polish descent. The fifth boy, who might be classed with the first string backs, is a Jewish lad, Fred Axelrod.

The star backfield of the team will not entirely be broken up after this season. Rand and Heffernan are juniors, and will be back with the team next year, and Axelrod, sub back, is a third year man, and probably will flash in the backfield next season.

Bill L'Italien, fullback, graduates next June. And Frank Rybicki also is through at Salem high after the present season. Both these boys have played fine football for Bill Broderick.

Rand is the star of the team. He kicks, runs with the ball, catches forwards and does all the other things which a good gridman should do. He has had a hard season with a flock of work in every game, so last Saturday he did not appear for long against Everett.

Al Pazanny, guard of the Salem team, is one of the best boys in his position now playing school football. He packs a fast, hard charge, and is a bear on recovering fumbles.

Grayesyk and Edzemunt, other linemen, also have starred for the Salem team this year.

The eleven is ready for its two final frays of the season. With wins over Newburyport, on Saturday, and Beverly, on Thanksgiving, Salem should have a large share in any school grid titles which are awarded at the end of the present season.

St. John's prep and St. Anselm's of Manchester, N. H., are all set for their game of the season, in the Lawrence Memorial Stadium on Saturday. St. Anslem's defeated the B. U. freshmen last Saturday, while St. John's was winning over the all star Brigton academy eleven.

St. John's has won every one of the grid games it has played with St. Anslem's, so the Manchester school is anxious to emerge from this war with a victory.

Several local boys have starred on the Johnson Academy grid team of Stafford, Ct., all season. Lorne Johnson, ex-Lynn star, made three touchdowns in the last game, with the Columbia Junior Varsity.

Joe Swan, former B. C. high player in is in the backfield of the Johnson team and is doing a fine job.

A HIGH DIVE THAT GAINED 15 YARDS

An unusual action picture in the Providence College-St. John's College game at Providence, R. I., November 16. Capt. "Marty" Gibbons of the Providence College eleven is shown being spilled by a St. John's player just after he caught a forward pass. Gibbons hit the ground on his face and shoulders, but succeeded in getting up and making 15 yards additional. The two players shown coming in, as he is being "dumped," are teammates and formed interference for his run. (Associated Press photo.)

HARMON QUITS AS CHICAGO ARENA HEAD

Harmon, who controlled 42½ per cent of the stock in the corporation, declared he would fight to retain the presidency, but was unable to round up additional support necessary to hold the position.

Harmon whose connections with Chicago sport dates back 30 years, was asked to resign as president of the organization "for the benefit of the stockholders." Sidney W. Strotz, secretary and treasurer of the corporation, said.

Strotz explained that the board was not dissatisfied with Harmon's management, but felt that an experienced business man should handle the corporation's business affairs.

A successor to Harmon was not selected and members of the board would not disclose the names of those under consideration for the job.

INSISTS SHE IS NOT TOO YOUNG TO KNOW LOVE

Marie, 16, Says It's Not Puppy Love With Her

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

SOONER or later, it falls to the lot of everyone to fall in love! And as a rule, the experience comes both sooner and later!

Beatrice Fairfax

It is safe to say there are few girls of 16 who have not felt a quickened heart beat, a thrill of romantic fascination at the approach of some young Romeo, who might seem quite an average type to the rest of the world. Boys, also, take a deep interest, not only in girls, but in one particular girl much earlier in life than is supposed by those who have forgotten their own youth!

"You are too young to know what love is!"

What an aggravating remark, addressed to one who is going through an emotional experience that is real, earnest and all-absorbing.

"Please do not tell me I am too young to know what love is," write Alice and Betty, Bob and Jack. "Mine is not puppy love—I know the difference. Even if I am very young I am in love."

Young folks who write in this strain are sincere, and what they write is, to the main, true. To mockingly call first love "puppy love," is ridiculous. Perhaps the very young know best of all what pure love is—love untainted by worldly ambition, financial consideration, greed or selfishness.

Sixteen-year-old Marie assures me that she is in love with "a very charming young man" two years her senior. They are engaged. She says her mother seemed to like him when he first began coming to see her, but has been saying very mean things about herself and her fiance, now that he wishes to marry her. Marie and her fiance, as a result are fearful of being separated and they long to be married, out of mother's way and happy!

Marie will never be more sincerely in love than she is today. Will she marry the boy she loves? Probably not unless the opposition of her mother, antagonizing the young couple, rushes them into marriage.

Cozette is devoted heart and soul to her Charles. They would be blissfully happy if only Cozette's father could be won to their plan of marriage next year when Cozette is 18.

"He couldn't even keep you supplied with pin money! He's not your equal, Cozette! If that ignorant young pup thinks he is going to carry my girl off to slave as his wife on his truck farm, he'll find he's in a pickle!"

All the time her Dad is raving Cozette is musing as to whether it will be better to elope with Charles now or trust to winning her father over before the year is up!

As Charles and Cozette likely to marry despite opposition? And if they do, will their marriage turn out happily? There is a chance that they may and it will. The chance of happiness is heightened by the fact that they are willing to wait a year until Cozette is 18. A year gives time for sober second thought. Meantime, young love may prove changeable as it often does, especially in case of separation for a long period and new faces and places. But the same is true of older love.

You may be told—possibly by myself in this column—how young folks grow and mature rapidly in their teens that a sweetheart who is completely heart-filling at 15 may seem an insufferable bore at 20.

I have friends who have been happily, very successfully married for 25 years now. And they were sweethearts in their teens. But—and this "but" is important—they did not marry in their teens. They went on being friends without being engaged, for five years, enjoying also, other wholesome friendships. Then at 24 Mac, seeing his way to support a wife asked Madge to marry him.

By that time they knew pretty well that their attachment was not a fleeting whim and that their friendship would remain congenial.

Unbridled, unrestrained emotion is always maddening, leading to satiety, failure and despair. This is as true of love as it is of anger and jealousy.

If your love is genuine, deep and beautiful, the first requisite in order to make it grow and prosper, is self-restraint and self-control. Power is gained through what is called sublimation.

Applied to chemistry, sublimation means causing ice to melt into a solid to a gaseous state then back again by cooling. Applied to the emotion of love, sublimation means figuratively, refinement or purification of love by contact with elevating thoughts, inspiring literature and unselfish friendships. You can sublimate your love by self-control, by determination not to use love only for a good, constructive and lasting purpose.

Wait awhile, girls, enjoy wholesome friendships. Try not to become absorbed in any one boy.

Young love is sweet and can be wise. Those who are mastering algebra, physics and chemistry be quite capable of loving intelligently. So let the rosebud of your youth continue to its natural flowering without forcing its bloom. Wait until your twenties, then marry the man you love with heart and head.

The Truth

By ELINOR GLYN

GIRLS, some of you might be going to be married, and others are already wedded and have perhaps two or even three little children.

I want to tell you of a house where I am visiting now, and of the young and pretty mother who presides over it.

Elinor Glyn

She has two little ones of seven and six and although they have nurses and governesses it is she who guides the education of their minds and trains their souls so as to form the highest characters.

She explains the reason of everything to them, and why they are being taught certain lessons, and the result which will follow the acquirement of knowledge.

She never gives them orders without fully making them understand why she is doing so. And above all she teaches them true citizenship, which is consideration for the rights of others by not imposing your own selfish desires upon them.

These children are not allowed to interrupt their elders' conversation, and make a noise and bore everyone when they are among the people.

They only have perfectly liberty in their play hours, and this is explained to them so that they may realize the great selfishness it would be to monopolize all the moments when with others for the expression of self.

Unselfishness, good manners and kindness to everyone are the fundamentals which are now being absorbed by their subconscious minds.

So, dear girls, think of this picture when you are with your own little ones. Then you will have immense joy with them as they grow older, and you will have taught them the real meaning of "noblesse oblige."

Etiquette of the Ring

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

When meeting an acquaintance who has just become engaged, is it proper for one to ask to see her ring or should she show it?

O. T.

WE should wait for the engaged girl to show her ring to us To begin with, it is so much more thrilling for her if she makes the suggestion. And it does not then even suggest that we are perhaps treading on too personal ground, for that we are too impolitely curious Also we may sometime most unfortunately make this request to a girl who has no ring, and we would, of course, be so sorry for our awkwardness, which might amount to a cruelty, that we would regret ever having made such a request.

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

NURSE.

AS in acknowledging any expression of appreciation, the nurse should first thank the doctor for his expression of appreciation. In addition, she may add something concerning that particular case—that is—if she can honestly say something about it. She may, for instance, say: "Thank you very much, Doctor Brown. I appreciate so much your telling me of your approval It has been a great privilege to work with you, and both you and (the patient) have been most kind," or "It is very kind of you to tell me that you are satisfied with my work and it makes me very happy. It is always a pleasure to work with you on a case, Doctor Brown. Both you and Mrs. (Patient) have been so friendly, and I appreciate it."

Twelve Rules for Success

By LUCY LOWELL

TWELVE rules for success were given to the world by that eminently successful man, Marshall Field. They are these:

1—Remember the value of time.

2—Do not underestimate the importance of perseverance.

3—Learn to appreciate the pleasure of working

6—Consider at all times the power of kindness.

—Give due weight to the influence of example.

—Under no circumstances believe the obligation of duty.

—Study the wisdom of economy

—Lose no opportunity to improve talent.

—Cultivate aids to getting on in life are these 12, and most marvelous of all it seems to me, next of course to the fifth the basis of all worthwhile human things, character—is the 10th, which cautions regard for perhaps the greatest of all virtues.

If you have a fine supply of patience you possess also the ability to persevere and to take pleasure in work, thus taking care of the second and third rules Also it is likely that patience will give you such clear insight into character that you cannot but respect simplicity and understand the power of kindness.

And what is so necessary as patience to learning economy, improving talent and developing originality?

Nancy Page Quilt Club

By FLORENCE LA GANKE

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Alphabet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, Boston American P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass.

WHAT else could the fourth block of the alphabet quilt be but a doll? Doll begins with D and children all know dolls, so a cunning sunbonnetted dolly it was.

The members of the neighborhood quilt club asked Nancy what colors she was going to use. She said, it was asking down to pick out the material she liked best. I spread the contents of the piece bag before her, and let her choose.

Joan chose a fine checked lavender gingham for the dress and a white gingham dotted with tiny pink spots for the sunbonnet. Nancy had some pale pink, almost flesh color, Peter Pan gingham which she used for legs and arms Charlotte used a green and white for dress and a plain yellow for bonnet. The colors depend, after all, on the scraps one has on hand Since most wash materials these days come in fast colors one does not need to fear the running of colors. But if you are in doubt, at all, be sure to wash a piece of material first. This was Nancy's invariable rule.

First the members cut the 6½ inch square from white gingham. This was of Peter Pan and was soft and fine.

Then they cut out the square of the quilt pattern as given in today's paper. They laid the cloth square over the newspaper one, allowing one-quarter inch extension of cloth on all sides. This quarter inch is later taken up in seams so that finished block is six inches square.

By holding the two squares against the window pane it is possible to trace both the letter and the doll. Use a sharp pencil.

After the tracing is on the cloth paste the paper square on to a piece of light weight card board or tag board. Dry under pressure.

While waiting for the paste to dry one can embroider the letter D. This is what the club members always did. It was hard to tell whether tongues or needles worked faster.

The color in which the letter was embroidered was decided by the color of the gingham which was used in strips between the white background. Nancy had chosen green, so all of her letters were worked in green. Had pink been her choice the letters would have been worked in pink.

Nancy did hers in outline stitch using four strands of fast color embroidery cotton. Some of the club members chose chain stitch They learned to use close fine stitches to give the letter enough body. After the paper was dry the legs, arms, head and body were cut apart and laid on materials. In cutting the cloth a quarter-inch allowance was made on [illegible] This was later turned [illegible] basted in place. After [illegible] pieces were pressed.

[illegible] pieces was laid on the [illegible] according to the pe[illegible] After basting the pieces in place they were sewed with fine invisible, slanting running stitches to the white block

Before the next pattern came out the members had pieced four connecting blocks. Each one was 6½ inches long and made up of two strips of white with a color strip between. All these strips were 1½ inches wide. When pieced they gave a block which was 6½ inches by 3½ inches.

A block was pieced onto bottom of alphabet blocks. The new set of blocks were pieced to the bottom of this striped block. The lengthwise strips were not put in until all of 36 blocks were finished.

Miss Pat -:- Romance of Airways

Wouldn't you LOVE it?"

"It would be very exhilarating, Pat, to wait on the shores while you took that perilous trip. Exhilarating indeed!"

"But, mother, think of Mrs. Lindbergh—and he was her only son—the only thing she had. But she didn't hold him back."

"No," said Laura softly, "she didn't hold him back. We can not hold them back—"

Then the youngster came to the door of Laura's dressing room:

"What you got planned for tonight, Pat?"

"For whom?"

Pat gave him a radiant smile.

"If it meets with your approval, I thought we'd go to Noah's for dinner and to a movie afterwards."

"Well, that's all right. Will Guy be along?"

"You don't mind, do you?"

"Oh, he can come if he wants.

"But I think it's about time I was getting another ride in the plane."

"I'll speak to him about it."

"But don't let him know I asked you to. Just kind of drop it that I wouldn't mind going."

"I'll be tactful," said Pat.

For 21 years her father and mother had been married. Each anniversary they went to dinner, to a theater or dancing. Or, sometimes, they got into the car and drove all the way up to the cottage on the lake. Because there they had spent their honeymoon, The anniversaries seemed precious to them.

As a little girl Pat grew perfectly furious when they left her home. She thought they had no right to be with her. As she grew older, she thought it poetic in them. She wondered if it were possible that they still cared with the old glow.

Could it be that now her mother cared for Richard with the fervor she felt for Guy? Felt that beautiful flush and warmth?

"Pat, mother," she murmured, dreamily, "your skin is so white. It looks like melted pearls. This is where Dad kisses you. His cute, isn't he?"

Laura blushed.

Often Pat had seen her father stoop and kiss the nape of Laura's neck. He would come by as she would be fooling over a bit of sewing, or, sometimes, as she kneeled in the garden planting or spading. He would stoop gally and kiss that soft curve. Laura turned red as a girl at these caresses.

"Ah—perhaps it CAN last," thought Pat with a happy sigh. "She looks as thrilled as though she were only twenty!"

"Come over here, Pat, and pull down my shirt," ordered Richard, yanking at his suspenders. "Now step aside! Are the trousers the right length? I want half an inch of my heel to show and no more."

Richard stepped back from the mirror, gave himself a grin of satisfaction and rubbed powder with a wet finger from his sandy eyebrows.

"How do I look, Pat?"

"Better than you've a right to look!"

"For an old man of forty, eh?" Come here, Laura, tell you what I bought her! Movie camera—want pictures of myself while I'm still young and gay. Lotta fun!"

He held his chin up while Pat tied the black bow tie. He winked and whispered as she finished, "Which do you love the best—your old man or Guy?"

"You!"

"Liar!" But he went with a swagger to the bed, pulled on his coat and stood for happy moment surveying himself.

Then he took up Laura's coat, holding it with a great air as though he were the lord of the earth. He whispered something that made Laura blush.

They went out and down the steps with as swift a run as though they were on their first party.

"Just think," said Pat, absently, "they've been married twenty-one years! A whole life time. They don't seem OLD—do they?"

"If we get by as well as they!"

"We shouldn't be so extravagant," said Laura.

"We've builded for twenty-one years, Lo. For the next twenty-one we LIVE. Every minute!"

Wednesday the films were developed. Richard sat with his head in a tub of water while Pat projected them on the little screen. He had a cold and Laura insisted on giving him a mustard footbath.

She passed her father's study Thursday morning. He had his hat cocked at a rakish angle. "Pat —are these good?" He showed her some advertisements he was just finishing.

At 3 o'clock Pat came home. She was worried, but she would not have admitted it. She had cut two classes, and was disappointed when Laura seemed surprised that she expected her father to be home.

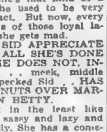
Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M not going to have this article held against me. It's not propaganda. . . . I'm not taking sides. I'm simply telling you some things about men and women And it's a nobody's business but mine I found it out!



Elsie Robinson

Martha Allen started it. Martha Allen's a Good Woman She's not pretty, but she's herself and I doubt if anyone will contradict her. She's 38 and she has been married for 17 years to Sid. Not that Sid had to wonder or worry about his Martha. She's that kind of a woman, and Sid used to be very proud of the fact. But now, every time she thinks of those loyal laborious years, she gets mad.

FOR DOES SID APPRECIATE HER AFTER ALL SHE'S DONE FOR HIM? HE DOESN'T NOT, INSTEAD, SID . . . meek, middle aged, chicken pecked Sid . . . HAS GONE PLAIN NUTS OVER MARTHA'S COUSIN BETTY.

Betty is not in the least like Martha. She's sassy and lazy and careless and silly. She has a comebither look in her eye, and a don't-give-a-damn waggle to her heel. And every time poor old Sid looks at her he brightens up just like a wilted bunch of spinach.

The tragedy reached its peak last night when Martha overheard Sid call Betty—"honey." Honey, and saw him chuck her—actually chuck her—under the chin! Had he ever chucked Martha or called her a little devil? He had not. That's gratitude for you—after giving him the best years of her youth!

Reading Martha's moan . . . such a moan! . . . I thought of a certain passage in Mary Webb's novel, "Seven for a Secret."

Robert Wayland's heart hero, is loved by Rawth—gentle, saintly Rawth, who would give her life for him, but to whom he scarcely has a passing pity. Robert, in turn, is wrung with mad desire for Gillian, silly, saucy Gillian, who is bad for herself. In a terrible moment, Robert decides to take his life, to give Gillian his goodness.

Why did he love Gillian and not love Rawth . . . "Gillian, the bloom of the summer, the dark, darkly-tinted flower, creature of sudden, deep gleams and glances, quite incomprehensible to him, of rippled laughter and those sullen moods that Rawth endured meekly, and when he could have snatched her and set his mouth hard on hers and taught her that he wasn't to be her better manners' . . . Yes! It was because he sometimes wanted to say, 'You little devil!' that he so wildly loved her . . . He would never have wanted to say 'little devil!' to Rawth. So he would never have wanted to marry her"

IT WAS BECAUSE HE SOMETIMES WANTED TO SAY "LITTLE DEVIL"—It was because she filled life full of restlessness and fury and desire and sweetness and the moving sense of adventure, that Robert loved the provoking, petulant Gillian and did not love the patient, unprovoking Rawth.

Rawth was a good woman . . . but Gillian was an interesting one! Rawth satisfied his comfort . . . but Gillian tantalized his pride! Rawth gave him love . . . but Gillian, unwittingly, gave him LIFE.

And that, Mesdames Martha, is why gentlemen prefer hussies. Outrageous? Perhaps. But don't hold it against me. I didn't make 'em that way.

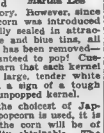
Thanksgiving Popcorn

MUCH as our forefathers must have enjoyed the popcorn which the Indians taught them to use, there is a vast difference between the popcorn of that day and this. Tremendous strides have been taken since those early days, both in the growing and processing of popcorn.

Until the last few years there was always considerable uncertainty as to whether or not the popcorn you bought would prove satisfactory. However, since a certain popcorn was introduced and heralded as sealed in attractive red, white and blue tins, all the guesswork has been removed—it is guaranteed to pop! Customers soon learn that each kernel pops out into large, tender white flakes without a sign of a tough hull or hard, unpopped kernel.



Martha Lee

Since only the choicest of Japanese hulless popcorn is used, it is assured that the corn will be of the best quality obtainable. The special processing puts it in perfect popping condition by giving it exactly the percentage of moisture needed to make it pop to the last snowy kernel.

With the electric poppers now on the market, and the splendid results you get with the sheet iron peppers, or even just a kettle on the kitchen range, it is no wonder that popping corn gains popularity every year. Then, too, popcorn can be served in many delicious and appetizing forms such as:

CHOCOLATE POPCORN

1½ tbsps. butter.

Boil together granulated sugar, butter, chocolate and 3 tbsps. of water. When the mixture spins a long thread, pour it while hot over 2 qts. of freshly popped corn. Stir until all of the kernels are coated.

Care should be taken to see that the chocolate covering is neither too thick nor too thin. If it is too thick, the popcorn becomes sticky and hard to eat. If it is too thin, it soaks into the popcorn so quickly that a part of its attractiveness is lost. Nothing, however, can spoil the delicious flavor of chocolate popcorn.

MARTHA LEE.

Miss Elizabeth Sanders Makes Debut at Salem Country Club Tea Today

Miss Louise Lawrence Parker to Wed in Hingham Church Next Tuesday

FOR THE DEBUTANTE affaire being held in honor of Miss Elizabeth Sanders, the buds once again hied themselves to Salem, as they did at the time of Miss Mary Ives' debut. There they first attended a tea at the Salem Country Club, which was the formal presentation of Miss Sanders by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sanders of Summer st., Salem, and Lantern Hill, Topsfield. Miss Katherine Sanders, an older sister of the youthful hostess, together with Miss Katherine Fabens was in charge of the tea tables, and those having the honor of pouring included Miss Mary Cleveland, Miss Elizabeth Holmes, Miss Priscilla Hedge, Miss Faith Donaldson, Miss Susan W. ARMY, NAVY BALL ON DEC. 6

One of society's most brilliant events is the Army and Navy ball in honor of the army, navy and marine corps, which takes place on Friday evening, December 6 at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

A special feature of the ball will be the prize competition at 11 o'clock between platoons selected by the commanding officers of the army and navy, marine corps and National Guard. The decision of a distinguished board of judges will be based on the general and individual appearance of men composing platoons which will count for 30 points; military precision, 50 points and general interest of exhibition 20 points.

His Voice Won Bride Freedom in Russia

If Maxim Karolik, the singing artist who makes his first Boston appearance at Jordan Hall, Monday evening, December 2, had not been favored with a gifted voice, he might still be in a Russian prison instead, he won as his wife, Miss Martha C. Codman, daughter of the Amory Codmans of Boston, and his Washington and Newport homes are centers of musical interest.

During the splendor of the Czar's rule, Karolik was the tenor of "Musical Drama," a distinguished opera group in Petrograd. The revolution caught aristocrats in its fury, and Karolik was thrown into prison. Everything had been taken from him but his voice. He was young. He was courageous, and he sang to pass time.

One night a guard came to him. "Do you remember me, Karolik? I sang in the chorus of your company. The hour when my turn comes to stand guard I will not see you if you walk through the gate."

The hour came. Concealed by the dark, Karolik passed through the prison gate while the guard, who had remembered the voice, looked another way.

Church Home Society Is Seeking New Name

Three prizes, amounting to $250, are offered for types of names to represent the present policy of the society, which places children out in families in this State. Names may be sent to New Name Editor, Church Home Society, 41 Mt. Vernon st.

Wellesley Holds Dance Recital

A dance recital by Catherine Bl[illegible] Rapp demonstrating the principle of Nova-Rhythm, the science of movement on law, will be given at Wellesley College Alumnae Hall, tonight. This principle of rhythm was discovered in 1912 by Florence Fleming Noyes, founder of the Noyes School of Rhythm.

The committee is Laura K. Dalzell, '31; Valeria G. Ladd, '14, Ruth Stephens, '30, president of the Wellesley Barnswallows Dramatic Association and Elizabeth Keith, '32, also a member of "Barn."

Day and Evening Fashions Take Up Little Boleros

THERE are times when little details are not an annoyance to us and that is when they concern the complete chic of our frocks. And this is especially true this season when so much depends upon a seaming or a flare. Little things are of increasing importance in the mode, and not the least of these is the brief and flattering bolero which asserts its style worth every few seasons.

Both the actual bolero jacket and unique variations of it are seen on many of the newest frocks. For sports for afternoon and for evening this theme has been developed with great success. Frequently only a bolero line is suggested without an actual jacket being formed.

THE last model is a triple bolero effect which serves as the sole trimming on a stunning evening frock in velvet. Of course this decided shortening of the waistline should only be attempted by the assuredly slender figure. It is youthful and has great chic when one possesses a reed-like slimness, and for the prep school and college girl is an attractive style to have in one's wardrobe.

SANDWICHES!

Indeed the crucial test for bread. To make sensible sandwiches the bread must be firm grained, with close knit texture—the kind you can slice thin or thick. Use MOTHER HUBBARD BREAD, and your sandwiches will be the kind you enjoy eating as well as serving.

Comfort so perfect

that you can forget you wear this sanitary pad

Today women prefer Kotex . . . the sanitary pad that gives comfort and freedom . . . in place of old handicaps and discomforts

HOW discomforting it is to be conscious of sanitary protection! And so unnecessary today, as millions of Kotex users can tell you.

These millions of women consider Kotex an absolute necessity. It gives you such wonderful comfort . . . permits such easy freedom of motion . . . that you can completely forget you wear it!

Why Kotex is comfortable

First of all, Kotex is wonderfully light and cool because it is made of that wonderful substance . . . Cellucotton absorbent wadding. It absorbs 5 times more than an equal weight of cotton! . . . thus giving protection without bulk.

Preferred by hospitals

A striking proof of Kotex superiority is the fact that 85% of the leading hospitals use Cellucotton for absorptive purposes. Doctors prefer it for its absorbency and vastly greater comfort.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

REVERE ISSUE ABLE TO SET NEW '29 TOP

By FRANK H. MELDON
Financial Editor

There are still some stocks able to set new highs for 1929 in Wall Street, despite the crash One which achieved the distinction of being able to do this feat this week was Revere Copper & Brass preferred. The original company was founded by Paul Revere of Revolutionary fame and the president today is a lineal descendant of the Colonial hero who rode over the turnpike to Portsmouth, N. H., aroused the Sons of Liberty there and brought about at New Castle the first open act of war against England The present day Revere, a Massachusetts man, bears the same name as his ancestor.

Treasurer William A. Parker of Incorporated Investors explains decision of a second extra cash dividend by declaring it is "an expression of confidence in American business and our belief that any curtailment will at the worst be relatively short-lived." It can be taken for granted that most of the flood of extra dividends which have followed the market crash were ordered by directors who were inspired by the same confidence as that cited by Treasurer Parker.

There is really nothing surprising about a decline in a very high grade stock when the market suffers a severe reaction. The best stocks are the ones too often sold by undiscriminating holders, who seek to maintain margin requirements on their low-grade issues.

Leaders in Congress may feel highly offended when a banker blames their conduct for causing stock market recessions. It is nevertheless a fact that business is made nervous by politics, and that the convening of Congress on past occasions has often depressed stocks by a period of receding stock prices.

A financial headline reads: "Local utilities overcome rate-cuts. With 26 per cent reduction in rates in past 13 years, Massachusetts companies increase earnings through sales efforts. In this column it has been repeatedly pointed out that the whole history of rate cuts by utilities shows increased consumption more than compensating for the cuts, and bringing increased profits as a natural consequence Management does its part, of course, but utility rate cuts in the past have always meant higher profits since their innovation by Consolidated Gas of New York many years ago.

Banks are the outstanding leaders in extending services to the public far beyond those of old days. Probably the communication companies can be ranked next.

Those discussing the effect of investment trusts on the stock market might study the subject and learn that there are comparatively few real investment trusts, although many go by that name. What is really needed is investors talking about investment trust buying and selling is generally inefficient buying and selling, a far different thing.

Another business index points upward. While the output of electric energy of all utility power plants in the United States in nine months of this year increased 11.5 per cent over corresponding period last year and output of New England not included in New England Power Association area increased 13.5 per cent, plants of New England Power Association increased 16.9 per cent.

Let Employers Pledge Forces Won't Be Cut

Institute of Industrial Co-ordination Should Be Formed Now

By B. C. Forbes

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—America needs, as this column has repeatedly urged, an Institute of Industrial Co-ordination, or some such organization backed by exactly the kind of brainy men President Hoover is calling together this week.

A permanent association under expert direction, could do much to level out peaks and valleys of employment, to discourage cruel dropping of elderly workmen, to develop sensible old age pension or other plans for caring for employes no longer able to earn a livelihood, to secure co-operation beneficial to all, to discourage unjustifiable destructive competition, and to effect other purposes calculated to stabilize industry and employment.

* * *

Unless certain evils of our present industrial system are remedied or at least modified by industrials themselves, the strikes' plain hand-writing on the wall is that politicians will by and by seek to win acclaim by bringing forward drastic legislation.

The alternative confronting industry is not action or inaction, but action by them or by legislators.

* * *

Today's Presidential conference with railway executives, tomorrow's conference with industry and utility leaders, Thursday's conference with agricultural representatives and the later conference with heads of labor organizations should bring immediate and helpful results. They should—and doubtless will—potently influence employers not to bring business uncertainment by the hurried and wholesale discharge of workers, by frightened curtailing of orders, by sudden cessation of placing contracts for raw materials by discriminating talkmanship of advertising and other sales efforts by abandoning planned improvements and extensions, by attempts to take advantage of events to tamper with wage scales.

In all probability President Hoover will direct the formation of committees in each important economic group and charge them with the responsibility of promptly getting together leaders from all parts of the nation, explaining the situation to them, counselling them to exercise all reasonable caution and then follow this up by compiling detailed reports covering the extent of the co-operation received from different employers, such reports to be promptly laid before the President for whatever action he may consider most desirable.

Just as the Governors of the New York Stock Exchange demanded complete facts and figures revealing the names of bears selling stocks short and thus aggravating the panicky conditions in Wall Street, so the President of the United States could appropriately request complete facts and figures revealing the names of corporations and other employers aggravating economic conditions by ill-considered, large-scale dismissal of workers and curtailment of business.

* * *

What the occasion requires is not, as President Hoover emphasized, words but deeds. An excellent impression would be made on the mind of the public generally and of workmen in particular if the heads of corporations and other enterprises, employing large numbers of workers would promptly issue brief, emphatic statements of this kind:

"We have not reduced our working force and have no intention of doing so. Nor have we cancelled orders or otherwise curtailed our spending program."

* * *

An example of this kind has been set for instance by President P. D. Saylor, of Canada Dry Ginger Ale, who recently closed an inspiring statement with these sentences:

"We believe that if a lull does occur in business, then is the time for alert management to make hay. Canada Dry for one is not going to intends to start 1930, not with less advertising and sales effort, but with more of each. And we recommend to you (distributors) the wisdom of such policy in your business."

That Wall Street will run into anything like another Typhoon Tuesday, is most unlikely.

* * *

I believe we can keep business satisfactory if we all keep our heads.

CHARLES J. BRAND

FEDERAL TRADE BOARD SEEN MENACED

Atlanta, Nov. 20—Unless some workable method is adopted whereby "trade abuses" industries can be brought to more general observance of their self-imposed rules of competition, the present trade system of self-regulation of industries and the trade-practice work of the federal trade commission is headed for "the same breakdown that occurred by reason of years of non-enforcement of the prohibition act."

This prediction of trade-practice turmoil declared to be destructive to producers as well as costly to consumers, was forecast today by Charles J. Brand, executive secretary of the National Fertilizer Association in an address prepared for delivery before the industry's fifth annual southern convention. He proposed a plan for obtaining observance of the trade-practice industry's trade rules.

"One of the dangers that has confronted the efforts at self-regulation by industries through their own codes and through the trade-practice conference procedure of the federal trade commission," he said, "has been that many affected executives, including leaders have looked on these documents as immediate curealls for their business diseases."

Mr. Brand said that not over 80 trades have held conferences with the commission, which has approved about 400 trade rules for these industries. These definitions of sound business conduct, framed by practical operators and approved by the commission from the standpoint of public interest, should give a foundation of law for fair competitive practices.

"If there could be a great amount of good can come from trade-practice rules," he said, "provided they be truly representative and when not observed, wisely enforced."

The movement toward self-regulation of industries has gained great momentum, he pointed out, adding that "in a sense we have come to a parting of the ways."

"Scores of industries," Mr. Brand declared, "now have what their leaders agree are regulations best suited to produce prosperity and good business. But in practically no industry that I know of are the self-imposed codes of the trade-practice conference rules being faithfully observed.

"If this situation is permitted to continue, we shall witness the same breakdown that occurred by reason of years of non-enforcement of the prohibition act."

The plan proposed by Mr. Brand for the fertilizer industry provides for an attempt to adjudicate trade disputes in the areas in which they originate. If this attempt should fail, then the complaint would be considered by a disinterested committee of the association. Failing to obtain action at this stage, the question of further enforcement would go to the board of directors of the association, whose decision should be submitted to the Federal Trade Commission or other federal agency having authority to hear and determine the particular matter in dispute for possible issuance of a cease-and-desist order against the offender.

Shubert Theaters Dividend Omitted

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Directors of Shubert Theaters today omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.25 due at this time on the common stock. A statement said although the company had originally earned surplus of about $2,000,000 and cash of approximately $1,000,000, the directors had considered it advisable to conserve working capital and to omit the dividend, which was not being currently earned.

"Early in the season," said the statement, "labor difficulties with stagehands and stage hands over our theaters closed in several big cities. This and general conditions have affected earnings."

Company Entering Its "Best Period"

Thompson Products Co. recently received an order from International Harvester Co. for 500,000 valves, involving around $200,000, and a shipment of valves was made last week to Pratt & Whitney, total $100,000.

Pres. C. E. Thompson stated: "Company is on the point of entering its most profitable period in its history."

American Stores

American Stores Co. has opened nine new stores in Altoona, Pa., its first unit in that city.

SHOE BOOM IN JANUARY FOR HAVERHILL

Haverhill, Nov. 20 — Work in several Haverhill shoe factories that are now being operated at much less than their capacity, owing to the usual dull season in the industry, will not be fully resumed until after the style show of the National Shoe Retailers' Association to be held in St. Louis for one week, opening Jan. 6, and the Since Wholesalers' style exhibits to be staged in Hotel Statler, Boston, the following week.

In a few weeks more than 30 Haverhill manufacturers who plan to have exhibits in the St. Louis show, and nearly an equal number in the Boston Style Revue will begin making samples to be displayed in both places.

Although manufacturers in nearly all parts of the country are to have exhibits in the St. Louis show, Haverhill shoe leaders expect to obtain a large number of orders. With these orders and those they expect to receive in the Boston shoe exhibits, local manufacturers plan on a flourishing business during the first few months of the year.

Fred L. Cooper, general manager of the Haverhill Manufacturers' Association, stated today that while local factories may increase their output early next month, no rush of business is expected until after the St. Louis and Boston shows.

2 SUITS FILED AGAINST CITY

Haverhill, Nov. 20—Alderman George L. Martin, highway commissioner, told his colleagues in the City Council at their regular meeting yesterday that the street department has no record of all present or former employes beyond 1915, this statement being evidently due to the fact that not all employes are being retired on pension without department records showing their length of service.

One of the latest to apply for retirement from the street department on a pension is James Dunn, whose petition will probably be granted at the council meeting tomorrow. Mr. Cuneen has undoubtedly been employed continuously the required number of years.

Mrs. Edward J. Donovan of Lincoln st. and Adam Chapinsky of Marion st. have filed claims against the city, the former for damage to her dress and stockings and for the price of cleaning her coat caused by falling over a pile of dirt in Kenoza ave, and the latter for injuries suffered, he says, by Dog's failure to have a railing in a section of Marion st.

SEDAN UPSETS; 2 UNINJURED

Tewksbury, Nov. 20 — Henry Schultz and Mrs. Hannah Arnold of Lowell had a narrow escape from death or serious injury here when their sedan turned over as the driver swung sharply to avoid collision with another machine.

Schultz was driving the sedan according to Tewksbury police, and the accident occurred at Main and Shawsheen streets, in the north village, when he tried to avoid being struck by a machine which entered the main road at a high rate of speed. The sedan was badly damaged, but neither passenger was injured.

Auto Hits 3rd 'Port Child in One Week

Newburyport, Nov. 20—The third child to be struck by an automobile within a week's time was slightly injured when hit by a car operated by Albert E. Wells. The young victim was Patricia Connors, five-year-old daughter of Florence Connors of Bromfield st. The child was struck on Purchase st. and taken to the office of Dr. A. J. Peter.

One of the accidents to children in the past week resulted fatally, and the victim of the second is living at the Anna Jaques Hospital. No charges was preferred yesterday in the condition of Stanley Wyzowski 14, who was hit by a car in State st. He has a fighting chance to live, according to doctors.

Leotland Stevens, eight years old, was killed in Merrimac st. last week. All accidents to the children happened under similar circumstances.

Water Board Looms Soon in Lowell

Lowell, Nov. 20—With Mayor Thomas H. Braden on record now as favoring a change in the management of the water works, to give a board of water commissioners full charge and make the superintendent a subordinate official, there is no doubt expressed here but that the change will go into effect early next year.

"I believe that a water board would be of great improvement over the present system," the mayor said, "and would operate the department much more satisfactorily, while at the same time it would prove of much greater benefit to the city."

Non-Inflammable Paint Is Secured by Bendix

New York, Nov. 20 (INS)—Vincent Bendix, head of the Bendix Aviation Corporation, revealed today that he has obtained for his concern the exclusive rights in United States and Canada for use of a new non-inflammable paint for aircraft.

"It is a new departure," he said, "and should bring about a new era in safety of airplane construction."

• • •

Aviation experts informed of the new patent, were practically unanimous in their agreement that the new patent probably would result in a downward trend in insurance rates for aircraft, and life insurance rates for air line passengers.

Bendix, who has just returned from a business trip to Europe, also announced that he has two other patents which he expects will go far toward revolutionizing the aviation industry.

He was secretive about the nature of these developments, but hinted that they will be disclosed sometime within the next three or four months.

• • •

"I am convinced," he said, "that aviation in the United States has a wonderful future. The industry right now might be said to be in the dumps but that is partially accounted for by the stock market decline, and the general slowing down of business."

"What about the attitude of the public toward the aircraft stocks?" he was asked.

"The public has been afraid of aviation securities for the last few months," he answered, "but this has had the effect of obliterating many of the companies which were selling stocks instead of building planes or furthering the development of the industry."

Bendix professes to see a wonderful future in store for the aviation industry and aircraft stocks. He feels the same way about automotive stocks.

• • •

"The officials of Bosch Magneto Co. in Germany," he said, "told me they are employing 7000 men. Before the war their payroll included only 4,000 men. They can be in very bad shape."

It is quite probable, Bendix admitted, that his concern may build a plant in Germany.

"Foreign nations have imposed such high duties," he said, "that it is practically impossible for American companies to compete with European motor car manufacturers. He refused to comment on the advisability of tariff retaliations.

"The only way in which American automobile manufacturers can extend operations to foreign countries," he declared, "is to build plants in those countries and thus avoid payment of the duties imposed with the specific intent of keeping out American competition."

• • •

France is in remarkably good condition, industrially, according to Bendix. England will show marked improvement, he said, within the next couple of years.

Germany is making rapid strides, he said, in the field of automobile production and in the chemical industry. Bendix signed contracts with German chemical companies during his stay abroad.

The Bendix concern may build plants in Germany, he said, to avoid tariffs which make German importation of planes practically impossible.

Indicative of the trend of business thought in the United States is Bendix's announcement that his company has established the Bendix Societe Anonyme, which will control production in France of the Stromberg carburetor and brake drive.

• • •

Bendix also has obtained part of the business of the Citroen Company, manufacturer of small cars and corresponding to the Ford Motor Co. in America. The company also has signed contracts for practically all of the French business in electric starters.

Despite the current lack of interest in aviation securities, Bendix himself is a bull on the aviation industry.

His own company, while concerned as much with automobile parts as with aircraft accessories, has $20,000,000 in cash and will earn about $4 a share this year on 2,115,000 shares of common stock outstanding.

• • •

The Bendix Aviation Corporation plant in South Bend, Ind., is being enlarged, in anticipation of increased business to come in during 1930.

Its plant in Birmingham, Eng., is also in process of expansion and acquisition of several British companies is in the works. Improvements are progressing constantly at the London plant of the Stromberg Carburetor Company, a Bendix subsidiary.

"What is your comment," Bendix was asked, "on the new Fornir DO-X, the German airship that carried 159 passengers?"

"It is a wonderful achievement," Bendix answered. "But plans are already under way in America for construction of a new super-plane. America is the birthplace of the airplane, and I believe we will build the best ship in the world."

Verdict Ordered for Defendant in $20,000 Suit

Lowell, Nov. 20—Trial of one of three $20,000 suits brought by the administrator of the estate of Joseph Forget, who was killed in an auto accident here, was halted when Judge Raoul Beaudreau ordered a directed verdict for the defendant, Peter Vezina Leominster.

Trial of the actions brought against Zoel A. Houle, Dracut contractor, and his son, Leo, is continuing in this court. The truck which struck and killed Forget is alleged to have been hired by Houle senior from Vezina and to have been operated by Leo Houle.

Bradford Club Plans Xmas Tree

Haverhill, Nov. 20—The Bradford Community Club, of which Howard G. Brown is president, already planning for a huge illuminated Christmas tree in Bradford Common, is to present new features for the entertainment of hundreds of children.

That all children of the neighborhood may attend, an entertainment will be given near the tree at 8:30 Christmas eve and it is possible that some sort of presents will be given them, although the committee, headed by Wallace Archibald, has not made definite plans for gifts.

4 HELD AFTER PLUNGE INTO MERRIMACK

Lawrence, Nov. 20—Four young men of Manchester, N. H., who escaped death at midnight when the automobile in which they were riding at terrific speed on Riverside drive crashed a pole, somersaulted down a steep embankment to the edge of the Merrimack river, were arraigned in district court today.

Arthur Rivet, 37, of 414 Manchester st., Manchester, N. H., alleged driver of the car, was arraigned on charges of operating an auto while under the influence of liquor and drunkenness.

His companions, Frederick Noree, Florence McCarthy and William H. Vaughn, all of Manchester, N. H., were arraigned on drunkenness charges.

According to residents of the community, the automobile was traveling toward Lawrence at terrific speed when it left the highway at the curve, struck and demolished a telephone pole, crashed through a fence and tumbled sideways over the steep embankment. The car came to rest on its side at the water's edge.

Ambulance attendants and police who rushed to the scene, extricated two men from the wrecked car with little difficulty but were obliged to cut away parts of the car to free the others. Only one of the four was slightly injured.

NEWBURYPORT PLAINTIFFS WIN

Newburyport, Nov. 20—William C. Moore of Salem, former superintendent of schools of this city, suing for special services rendered after his term of employment here and pending the appointment of a successor, was awarded a verdict of $2833.17 by a jury in the civil session of the Superior Court here.

This case was one in which Vice-Chairman Dr. Walter E. Brown of the school committee with the approval of that board retained the advice of Mr. Moore in school matters and his bill for services was approved by the mayor and held up by the city auditor under an ordinance saying no expenditures may be made except there be an appropriation made. There was a mistake in the interpretation of the law in the case, as shown by Judge O'Connell's decision.

Another case was finished in which Mary E. Murphy is seeking to recover for alleged injuries when she slipped and fell on a floor at the Woolworth building in this city, which, she claims, had been oiled. Linus J. Thresher, then manager of the local store and now in Boston, and another Woolworth employe, testified that the floor was oiled 10 days before the alleged accident, and Miss Elizabeth Peckham, a Woolworth clerk, testified to examining the spot in the store and finding nothing to make the woman fall.

The plaintiff claimed she received a back injury and damage to a knee and was confined to her bed for five days under care of a physician.

50 JOBS SAVED IN LOWELL

Lowell, Nov. 20—Without a dissenting vote, the city council last night voted extra appropriations in the sum of $31,848.99 to bolster up the accounts of several departments which appeared to be running behind.

The largest appropriation was the sum of $27,000 for the water department, to be taken from the department's own revenues. Had this appropriation not been approved about 500 laborers would have faced suspension the first of next month.

The other orders included $1468.82 for the elections department, $2100 for a new automobile for the mayor and $1220.08 for the city sealer and the city treasurer.

Funeral Mass for Mrs. DeSerres

Haverhill, Nov. 20—With the celebration of solemn requiem high mass the funeral of Mrs. Alphonsine DeSerres, 63, widow of Alphonse DeSerres, who died in the family home in Blaisdell st. after a long illness, will be held in St. Joseph's Church at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery, Amesbury.

Mrs. DeSerres was born in Canada and had lived in Amesbury before locating in this city 14 years ago. Her survivors include five daughters, Ida, Antonia, Mary and Alexandra DeSerres of Haverhill, and Mrs. G. L. Biladeau of Amesbury; three sons, Albert of Amesbury, Wilfred of New York city and Wilfred of Bridgeport, Ct.

Amesbury Woman Injured in Crash

Amesbury, Nov. 20—Mrs. Mary Terrio, wife of Alfred Terrio of this town, suffered head injuries late yesterday afternoon when the automobile, in which she was riding with her husband, was operated by him was in collision with a machine driven by Chester Congdon of Amesbury at Market and Fremont sts., according to police report.

Card Party for Playground Fund

Haverhill, Nov. 20—The Peabody School Parent-Teachers Association as part of its fall and winter activities plans to raise funds for playground equipment including a large toboggan slide. The first event of the program will be a card party to be held in the school Friday, December 6, in charge of a committee of which Mrs. Ralph Carr is chairman.

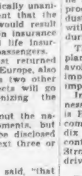
NEWS AND VIEWS OF MODERN HOMES

FINE POINTS OF MODERN HOMES

By BETTY BONNELL

TIME was when we took it for granted that the basement was simply a space between the foundation of the house and the first floor. Its only chief purpose was to house the heating plant and coal bins, hide away tools and shelve a good old paper and castoff clothing.



Betty Bonnell

The less we opened the basement door, the less dirt was apt to get into the house; and as for children, they were forbidden to enter downstairs.

Then modern minds began to discover that a valuable space was being overlooked and literally wasted. Hosts and housewives, looking for a room to entertain informally began poking down in the basement and where once there was nothing but darkness, they suddenly began to "see the light."

Now, it has become quite customary to have your guests remove their wraps and coats and usher them downstairs into your cozily furnished game room, which is nothing but the lowly basement converted into a room for games, parties, dances and all sorts of entertainment.

It is really not at all expensive to do over the basement. You simply wall off the heating plant and coal bins (if you have a coal furnace) and the rest of the space can be furnished as economically as you see fit. Somehow, whitewashed walls and heavy crude beamed ceilings are not at all uncomfortable in the basement. One seems to expect it.

Of course, you can help things immensely by adding a hanging here and there, as well as a painting or two. Two or three easy chairs interspersed with a number of simple, straight-backed chairs and one or two tables, will more or less complete the furnishings.

A billiard table placed in the center or handily to one side will most certainly make an attractive feature. You can even bring the radio downstairs or at least a phonograph amply supplied with up-to-date records.

Federal Street Store in Lease

The Shaw-Walker Co. of Muskegon, Mich., manufacturers of filing equipment, has leased through Arthur J. Pearce, Jr., the store and basement at 132 Federal st. Remington and Rand were the lessors.

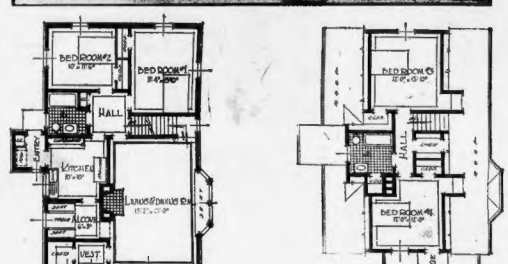
NATIONAL MODERN HOMES, BUREAU, Inc.



THE semi-bungalow (HA-130) offers the convenience of the bungalow and the privacy of the two-story house since the family bedrooms can be placed on the first floor, where they are most convenient, and the guest rooms on the second floor, where they will be private and in no way interfere with family routine.

COMPLETE working plans and specifications of the house illustrated above may be obtained at a nominal cost from the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc. Any technical questions regarding this house will be answered without cost or obligation. Address the National Modern Homes Bureau, Real Estate Department, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Refer to House HA-130.

F. S. Lane Sells Two Home Properties

Through S. W. Keene & Son, Frank S. Lane has sold to Richard L. DeBourke the two-family frame dwelling at 36 Whiting st., Roxbury, which, with 3398 square feet of land, is valued at $6100.

Mr. Lane also sold to Andrew T. Colsh 4100 square feet of land on Ruth rd., in the Oak sq. section, Brighton. The buyer will erect a two-family house of modern type.

Worcester Board Adds 50 Members

The Worcester Real Estate Board has made a canvass which resulted in an addition of 50 names to the board's roster of associate members including large property owners, those with small-er property interests, architects, contractors and others engaged in work closely allied with the real estate profession.

LITERATURE on standard materials and products used in the construction of Modern Homes will be sent to you, if you will check the subjects that interest you and mail to the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Mother Goose Folk Romp at Gilchrist's

Mother Goose and the Land of Nod, Little Jack Horner, Old Mother Hubbard, and all the friends of story book days, have come to Boston for the Christmas holidays.

Forests of evergreen, snow capped mountains, sparkling waterfalls, snowy hillsides, and a village of real, live midget folk, have transformed a large section of Gilchrist's Toy Department into one of the most unusual Christmas features seen in this city.

The midget village in the Land of Nod is the work of Mrs. Edna Kaiser of Philadelphia, herself a dainty and doll-like lady to whom dolls and things of Mother Goose seem very fitting. The mother of nine children, herself, Mrs. Kaiser first developed the midget village to amuse her own family. Now, after months of painstaking effort, she has made this children's party one of the most delightful spots in Boston for youngsters to visit during the holidays.

Two hundred dolls representing Mother Goose and fairy book characters form the population of the village, each little doll being dressed to represent one of the characters.

The midget village is reached through the enlarged and beautifully decorated toy department of the Gilchrist store. In this department is to be found the usual assortment of games, books, mechanical toys and trains and other things which are usually popular at this time of the year, as well as many new toys and games. The doll section is unusually large and features a truly great display of American and imported dolls of all sizes and kinds. Off to one side is a remarkable display of doll carriages as well like real baby carriages that only the size distinguishes them from the real article.

FLANG'S THAT FLY

A 1929 feature of particular interest is the display of model airplanes which is modern to the last degree. Even the airplane ads are not only beautiful but are very practical as well, all of them being tested for air worthiness by the Kingsbury Co. which makes them. A feature of this exhibit is a continuous motion picture which shows the manufacture of these planes and how they are flown.

As one enters the midget village and walks down Merryville rd., after leaving the toy department, the first building is the home of the Dew Drop Princess, who is shown in silver and lace, reclining on gossamer fabric all day long on a fairy loom. Next to her castle is a wonderful gingerbread house all decorated with brightly colored Christmas candies, and windows framed in peppermint stick. High overhead Mother Goose rides on her faithful old bird, while down below the Mother Goose characters stroll in and out of the gingerbread house.

Around the next corner appears the snow-clad mountains and the sparkling toy blue waterfall. Tiny chalets and the snow-capped church dot the landscape. Ski jumpers, bob sledding parties and toboggans flash down hillsides. Skating parties in gay costumes whirl and spin on the skating pond at the foot of the hill in Sleepis Needie Noodie Vil.

REAL LIVE MIDGETS

In the valley also is the great wind mill with its huge wings flapping lazily in the breeze. Then comes the midget village itself with the real live midgets greeting the boys and girls from 10 to noon each morning and from 1:30 to 4 each afternoon.

As special agents for Santa Claus little Billy and Joe McKean, tiny midgets who range over Midget Village, entertain and clown for the kiddies in their gay costumes.

They have their own cosy little houses and their own church and their own shops. The window of the Lick a Stick shop are chock full of Christmas candies, and the midget toy shops is crammed with tiny toys for the midgets and their doll friends.

Then, of course, there must be Santa Claus, and he is found at the end of the village in Main st. in all his glory with a sack full of surprises for good boys and girls, and toys and games over the floor of his Majestic Castle. Seated at his desk, Santa has dozens of pencils, and just a touch of note paper to write down the things his little visitors want for Christmas.

Leaving Santa, we come back to the Toy Department, which is decorated with scenes from Mother Goose, and the Mother Goose characters. The walls are covered with pictures of play scenes against a background of black sky and gold stars.

Alfonso Refuses to Disband Artillery

London, Nov. 20—King Alfonso of Spain has refused to sign a decree dissolving fe'al artillery regiments, handed him by Gen. Primo de Rivera, whose political situation has reached great intensity, according to a daily newspaper dispatch from Gibraltar, since the artillery regiments bristle with enmity for the Spanish dictator.

Primo's attempt to dissolve the artillery was made "in an effort to quell unrest in the army."

Sultan Sa Buisan Must Go to Prison

Manila, Nov. 20 (AP)—Sultan Sa Buisan, Moro chief, must serve ten years imprisonment and pay a fine of 7000 pesos ($3500) for sedition. The Supreme Court upheld the finding of the lower courts.

The Sultan's followers joined the government and engaged in a general relgn of terror in Lanao Province, Mindanao Island, from 1925 to 1928.

Bank Book Preferred

Today's "Best Buy"

HAPPY the man who was not tempted during the Great Excitement to disturb his savings-bank account in order that he might try his fortune in "the market."

Total deposits in the savings banks of Massachusetts on the first day of the present month amounted to $2,027,736,000, as compared with $1,977,002,000 on the first day of November in 1928.

The gain for the year, therefore, was $50,734,000, which seems most substantial until you are told that approximately $55,600,000 in dividends was declared in the twelvemonth. It thus appears that the gain in deposits amounted to not much more than half the earnings in dividends.

Bay State savings banks opened accounts with about 10,000 new depositors, the total number of Massachusetts folk who possess bankbooks being now 2,939,000.

It having been demonstrated once more that "easy" money is a phantom, a delusion, let us hope that this year's ten thousand NEW depositors will leave their money with the bank and watch it grow.

For the beginner in finance, today's "best buy" is Bank-book Preferred.

Watch Strange Growths

Cancer Not Dangerous—At First

(Copyright, 1929)

THE New York Life Insurance Company reports cancer deaths increasing.

Don't neglect any strange growth, however slight. And don't be afraid to see your doctor for fear that he will say you have a cancer.

If you go early enough he will take it out or kill it with radium bombardment, and you will stop worrying.

Remember that cancer CAN be cured in its early stages. And cancer CANNOT be cured in its later stages.

Man's most dangerous enemies are invisible even through the telescope, infra-microscopic germs of disease a million times more dangerous than all the venomous reptiles and savage animals.

But man can conquer them. In Germany, for instance, an old church, lined with most beautiful carved wood, including a magnificent wooden staircase, was threatened by destruction. Tiny creatures were destroying the wood.

The church was closed air-tight, filled with a highly poisonous gas. When it is opened, after a week, the wood destroyers will be all dead, the wood safe. Three weeks later human beings will be admitted.

It would be easy with the same gas to kill all the rats on every ship before it unloads, and before the rats with their disease assortments are brought ashore. Such destruction of ship rats should be compulsory.

The Masked Menace

By NELSON HARDING

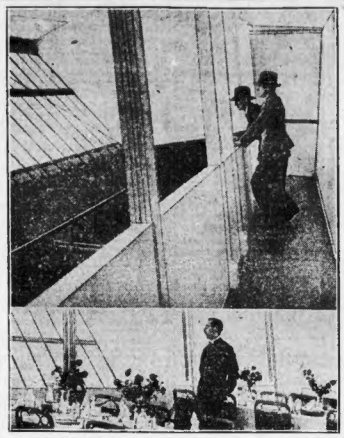
That plausible but lying mask
Is just a crafty plan
To hide the character of one
Who is a Hired Man

Of ruthless Tariff Interests,
Who disguise foes and friends,
And turn them loose on Washington
To serve their selfish ends. —N. H.

A Modern Hotel?

No, a Modern Flying Machine

(Copyright, 1929)



TWO PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN ON THE BRITISH R-101, BIGGEST AIRSHIP EVER BUILT.

The country that INVENTED the airplane and made the first flights in a heavier-than-air machine watches and waits for other countries to do what this country SHOULD be doing.

We have the ENGINEERS, the SKILL, and heaven knows we have the MONEY.

We SPEND a great deal, but we don't get much.

We shall wake up eventually, of course. A ship something like this might COMPEL us to awake rather disagreeably, as one wakes on falling out of bed, if it brought a load of TNT and poison gas to New York, Washington, Chicago, or some Pacific Coast city.

The Wright Brothers

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

ONE of the permanent glories of America is the conquest of the air, by Orville and Wilbur Wright just 25 years ago. These two men represented the culmination of man's increasing efforts through the ages to master secrets of flight.

During the period since that first flight the development of aviation has been almost unbelievably rapid and impressive.

Today men are flying 10 times as fast as Wilbur Wright in his first exhibition flights. Planes with 100 times the lifting capacity of the Wrights fragile box kite with a motor are the realities of today.

It does not in any way detract from the brilliant success of the Wrights to point out that before them great strides had been made toward the solution of the problem of flight.

The work of Lilienthal in the manufacture, piloting and control of gliders; the suggestive experiments of Wenham, Henson, Stringfellow, Pilcher, Le Bris, Mouillard, Hargrave and Phillips brought out many new and constructive ideas, regarding gliding, box kites, ornithopters, wing surfaces, rudders, propellers and the flight of birds.

The most distinguished of the Wright predecessors and contemporaries in airplane invention, was Dr. Samuel P. Langley, head of the Smithsonian Institute.

It is scarcely open to doubt that, had he possessed adequate funds, he would have conquered the air.

The small models he built flew successfully; but the heavier-than-air machines, with a passenger, cracked up at each experiment owing to comparatively slight but unfortunately fatal defects. Very insignificant alterations would undoubtedly have solved the problem of flight—as was afterward shown by Glenn Curtis in the Langley plane, reconditioned and with these alterations made, and with the addition of a much more powerful motor.

THE remarkable feature of the Wright's achievement lies in the fact that they were not famous scientists, but only bicycle mechanics. Yet both of them had remarkably inventive minds and were capable of prolonged, constructive thought over any mechanical problem. They were likewise fortunate in not having a sort of overpowering reverence for scientists, their works, tables and apparatus.

Knowing that something must be wrong with the scientists' findings about flight, they proceeded to test everything for themselves.

They found out that Langley's wind pressure tables were erroneous, one by inventing a wind machine and making experiments, they made out a new and correct set of tables.

In their gliding flights they succeeded, as no one before them had effectively done, in establishing a principle of stability. A vertical rudder and rudder and wing warping gave them two controls, which constituted crucial features of their invention.

To the end of recorded time, Orville and Wilbur Wright will be remembered and honored as the first men to fly in a heavier-than-air machine, which was an instrument of their own invention.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WE read in the New York Times that Bugs Baer has died in the Central Park Zoo.

Bugs was the honey bear given to the city of New York by the imperial suburbs of Canada. Walter Kelly, the Virginia judge, states that the writer went up to the Zoo to take a look at his name plate.

Thereupon, the bear took a look at the writer, crawled to the back of his cage and died either from fright or shame.

Mr. Kelly will print that paragraph in the New York press. All that we can say is that the poor animal isn't the first bird to collapse on a bear market.

We were present on City Hall steps when Mayor Walker dedicated the four-legged cornerstone. His honor, the Jimmy, poured a glass of clear, sparkling canal water on the bear's ears.

The mayor said: "I christen thee Bugs. And I don't see what you are going to do about it."

If a cat can squint at a queen, a bear can ogle a mayor. The cub didn't like the civic shower bath and made a neat snap at the municipal spats.

Then the bear took a look at me. Honors were about even. My knees were just as baggy as his.

Then we took him to his cage in Central Park where he starved a year on the bounty of the writer.

On pleasant Sunday afternoons, we used to share a bag of peanuts with him, giving him the bag and the shells.

We also gave him a charge account at the best grocery stores. But he never took advantage of it.

While the Virginia judge claims that he perished of either fright or shame, a diagnosis indicated it was a judicious blending of the two.

His career was illustrious. They brought him down from Canada in an airplane, gave him his moment on City Hall steps and then tossed him into a Central Park cage. Sometimes, a quest of the city can be quested too much.

He passed out amid the fanfare of margins and the chorus of call money in Wall Street. Like all the other bears he thought he was on velvet until the panic joined him, too.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

THE temperature of a healthy man's blood is about 37 degrees Centigrade (98.4 Fahrenheit) and it fluctuations are fractional. (A moderate and agreeable temperature for a room is about 16 degrees Centigrade, or 60 degrees Fahrenheit). His sensitive body shows signs of distress with a fall or rise of two or three degrees (Fahrenheit) in his internal temperature.

A rise of this amount in itself is enough to produce fever symptoms, headache, malaise and loss of nervous and muscular power. But the essence of the danger of a chilled condition lies in the diminished alertness of the leucocytes. Infections that are quite easily disposed of under normal conditions may now make headway. Colds, influenzas, bacteria, always oeseging the body but normally held at bay, get successfully busy at the immediate result of a chill.

H. G. Wells

The body is continually losing heat to the coole, air which is usually around it, and therefore it must have internal sources of heat to keep its temperature up. This heat-production is the result of the continual chemical activity of our muscles and glands, for many of the processes needed to keep our muscles taut and ready for action.

The most warm-blooded animals the skin is clothed either with hair or feathers. A hair is a kind of dead cells, proliferated from a living root, that sticks out from the skin into the outer air.

The part that lies inside the skin is housed in a tube, the hair follicle. Round the mouth of the follicle there is a sensitive nervous belt with which we have already dealt, and opening into it there are one or two sebaceous glands which secrete a natural brilliantine to keep the hair and skin supple. The outside parts of the hairs form a forest in which imprisoned air stagnates, so that heat loss by convection is reduced.

At the same time, since air is a very poor conductor of heat, heat loss by conduction is also diminished. Man, however, does not produce hair or feathers for himself; he steals them from other creatures or replaces them by woven vegetable fibres.

The skin is an adjustable radiator. By dilating the blood vessels in the skin the amount of blood that is exposed to the cooling action of the air can be increased; therefore we redden when we are too hot. We are increasing the amount of blood in our air-coated radiator. Conversely, when we are too cold the vessels of our skin contract; we blench and the skin pales and may even become bluish from lack of bright red oxygenated blood.

Perspiration is due to the action of the sweat glands, which pour out on to the surface of the skin a fluid that consists very largely of water. That evaporates and cools us. It is our most effective method of temperature regulation. By sweating and so cooling his body a man can stand exposure to a temperature at which water would boil.

It is indeed perfectly possible for the living flesh of a man to remain in a hot chamber long enough to see the dead flesh of a mutton chop cooked by the same heat whose effects his temperature regulating machinery can obviate.

But to endure such heat the air around a man must be dry. If the air is already charged with water vapor, or if he is immersed in water, his sweat cannot evaporate and is therefore useless.

CHAPTER THREE

The Harmony and Direction of the Body Machine

1. A STUDY OF ADJUSTMENT

We are "fearfully and wonderfully made," says Holy Writ, and all that has gone before must seem to the reader but an elaboration and filling in of that statement.

The first adjustment that we have to consider is the adequate supply of oxygen to the working cells of the body. In a resting man the heart, the arteries, the kidneys and the respiratory muscles are active, and their oxygen requirement, although it is not zero, is very small.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

NEVER strike a woman. Just tell her, frankly, how you think she looks in the new long skirts.

It isn't the lies which people tell about a woman that worry her—it's the harrowing fear that somebody may some day tell the truth about her.

One reason why the modern man's love-making lacks sparkle is because his sentiments have been uncorked so early and so often that they have lost all of their original effervescence.

Never waste your time trying to win back lost love. You can win a man back to duty, honor or respectability, perhaps—but never to love, once the spell has been broken.

The average man's love-making, like a cat's purring, simply signifies that he has had a good dinner, is deliciously comfortable, and that you happen to be soothing his vanity the right way.

Sometime, the dullest fate on earth, to a man, is to be married to a woman who is so fascinating that he can't even enjoy flirting with other women.

It is never impossible to flatter a man; even the hideous Caliban would have flushed with pleasure if some little nymph had complimented him on his "individuality."

A woman can arouse a man's interest by appealing to his curiosity, his imagination, his vanity or his senses—but never by appealing to his common sense.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—In the wake of the Wall Street hurricane, one scarcely hears a single moan of jazz. It was dying before the crash and the rout seems now complete. Not for years has the metropolis been so pleasantly sedate. Cafes without music are getting the big play.

Ultra smart people are going to the opera and theater in closed horse-drawn cabs. Night clubs, where gin swigging youngsters held forth, are one by one making their bow. People sobered by sterner realties of life seem to shrink from them. Their keynote is simplicity.

More than 50 well-known jazz orchestras have disbanded in the past few weeks. The young generation is not dancing the hours away. And for some reason drinking is suddenly not at all "smart." It was a merry mad epoch and nothing has been so heartening as the reaction.

The flapper and cake eater types disappeared like a magician's evanishment. The wide pantalooned silly has climbed into working clothes. Thousands of girls are letting their hair grow. Skirts are growing longer daily. Paint and powder are being discarded.

Disillusioned girls awakened to the fact that America had suddenly become a new world. They could not work all day and hit the high spots at night. They faced a wall of sound economics and only the girl who took her job seriously had a Chinaman's chance.

Thousands of girls, as a matter of fact, interested men only in frivolous moments. Marriage was something else. Few men have frivolous moments these days. They are recouping losses by working every hour of the day and sleeping every hour of the night. Life is no longer a musical comedy with words by P. G. Wodehouse and music by Irving Berlin.

In the theater, stamping and dragging dancers along with baby talk singers went out like a light. Graceful long-skirted ladies are warbling sugary sentiments. The "it" girl has faded from the film. And this morning—cross my heart—I received an invitation to an old-fashioned taffy pulling.

A spy gallops up to tell me that among the utterly blase worldlings he has seen blush with his own eyes are: Robert L. Ripley, Karl K. Kitchen, Herbert Bayard Swope, Percy Hammond, Edgar Selwyn and Ed Wynne. For that matter there are very few who cannot turn a rosy red when pushed. Or when caught talking to themselves.

New York automobilists—Oh, yes. quite a number still have cars—are besieged by an army of professional moochers who thrust their arms palm upwards through limousine windows during traffic halts. They usually ask only "a nickel to get to Brooklyn" and the modesty of their appeal evokes a generosity. But those who are refused become vicious. With a nail point they leave scratches on the polished sides of cars.

New York, says an inspired writer in London Sketch, is preparing to erect an apartment house with a bungalow on its roof. There is also a hot tip out that a hotel over here is going up that will have electric lights in every room.

In one of those braggy-fronted shops on the avenue there is a doorman who is a silent half partner in the business. He believes a courteous reception of customers is a business clincher, and has proved it.

The dowager Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt again proved her queenship of the social realm at the opening of the opera. Every glass was turned on her as she walked down the aisle, and hundreds waited outside to see her depart.

The haughty and venerable Mrs. Vanderbilt for the first time graciously halted before the circle of cameramen in the lobby. But probably never again, for a tabloid photographer called out: "Past a Dowager! The big smile, please!"
